With the conclusion of yet another summer, students once again walked through the halls of the high school. Surviving half a century, Southern High School celebrated its 50th anniversary with memorable events both locally and world wide. The tragedies in New York and the auto shop began and concluded yet another exciting year, and you were here.

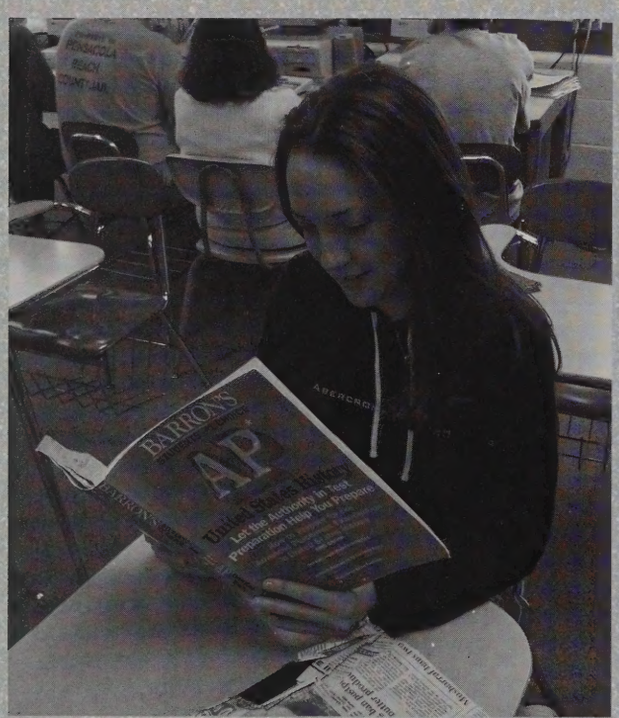
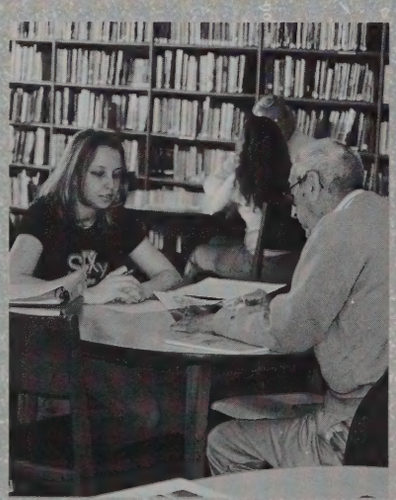
Southern High students and staff met at the flagpole on September 12th for a memorial service.



Kelly Wade, junior, studies for her Advanced Placement United States History class. "I'm really smart," Kelly said. "So this class is easy for me."

Some students had the opportunity to interview World War II veterans for a history class project. They worked under the direction of Mr. Matt Novak, who tragically passed away as the project neared completion.



Academic excellence once again flooded the classrooms of Southern High School. AP classes, foreign languages, and math quizzes filled students' daily agendas while extra-curricular activities gave everyone something in which to participate amidst all of the homework and hours spent studying.

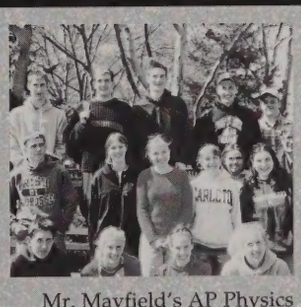
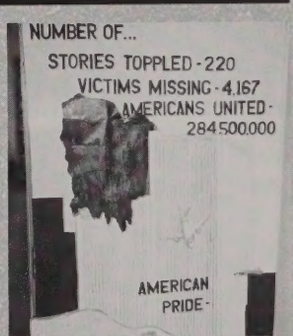
Student Council representatives from Southern, along with other schools, met to discuss state wide issues.

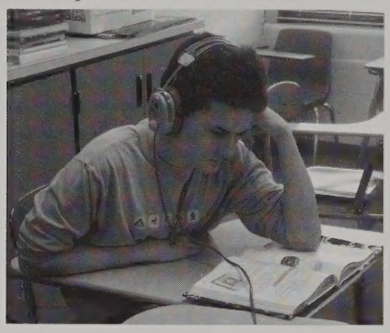


Mr. Mayfield's AP Physics class headed to Kennywood for a day of physics-filled fun.



Showing their pride for America, Mr. Drobac's class decorated its door in rememberance of the victims of 9-11.

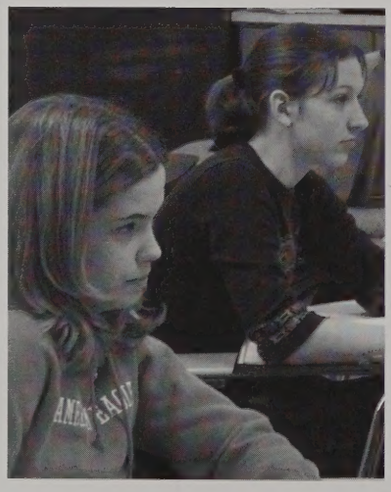
Seniors Elizabeth Everett and Karen Gallagher enjoy a Christmas party in Spanish. For these girls, this party was one of the highlights of this class. It involved gift exchange and of course some Spanish tradition.



French III is an extended learning class. Junior Ben Peracchio follows along in his book while listening to a tape. "I don't mind listening to tapes," said Ben. "It is a great way to learn French."

The German class listens to Mrs. Lambert review the basics of the German language. Adam Sincell copies notes from the board for his next test.

Laura Bonser and Jenna Culp follow intensely with Mrs. Lambert in their German class. "I like speaking German," said Laura. " It is really fun to learn a different language."



French IV is the highest level of extended learning level offered. Seen here is senior Alison Ulino reading from a French novel with the class. "I like French IV," Alison says. "It is a great class that challenges my conversational skills."

Spanish Field Trip to New York

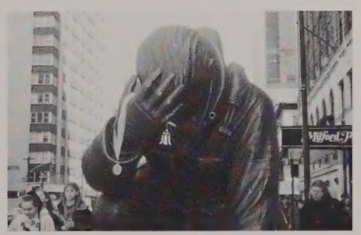
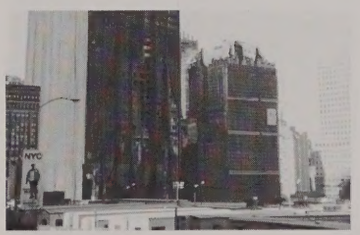
Among the monuments Mrs. Harden's students encountered was this tribute to the original builders of the World Trade Center. "You can just imagine them up there eating lunch," says Mrs. Harden. It was really powerful."



This memorial to the fire fighters who served and died in the World Trade Center crisis was originally constructed to honor those who died in the Oklahoma City Bombing. It was sent to New York after September 11th.



The damage at ground zero touched Mrs. Harden's students. "It was very powerful," said Shannon Folickman. "You could see the devastation."

Seen here is a billboard from Virgin Records of our flag and the quote "United We Stand." Mrs. Harden said there were many signs of patriotism on the streets of New York City.

minds at work

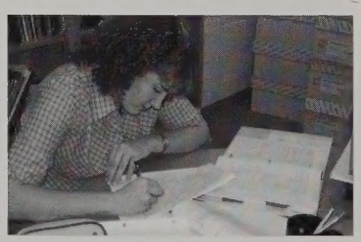
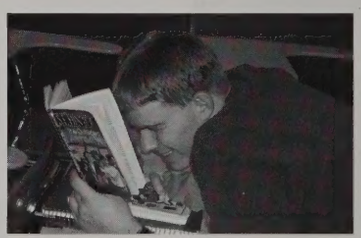
"In my U.S. History class we do vocabulary sheets and read units in the text book," said Jessica Crosco, freshman. "We have a History Day project and an oral history paper to work on."



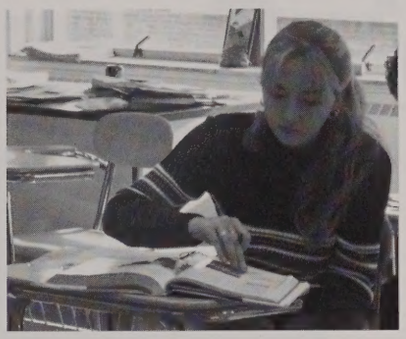
Some seniors took GCC English in the distance learning lab. "I am really glad I took GCC English because I only have class two days a week, which reduces some of the stress of being a senior," LaWanda Harvey said.

Amanda Pase works contently in her social studies class. "Mr. Oxford's class is challenging but reasonable," Amanda explained. "We learn at a rapid pace,and have one large project that consists of several small projects." .



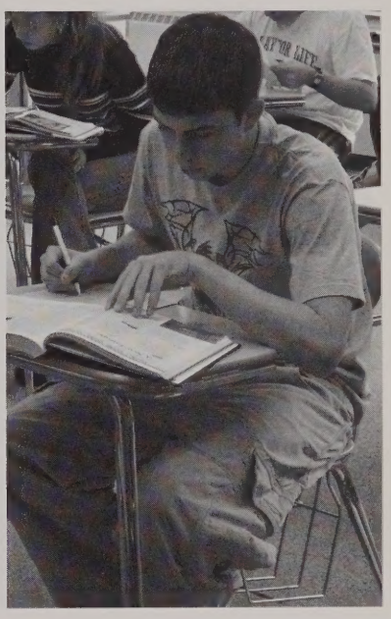
William Reese works quietly and reads a book for his senior English class. Novels were a major part of the English curriculum in Mr. Shaffer's class.

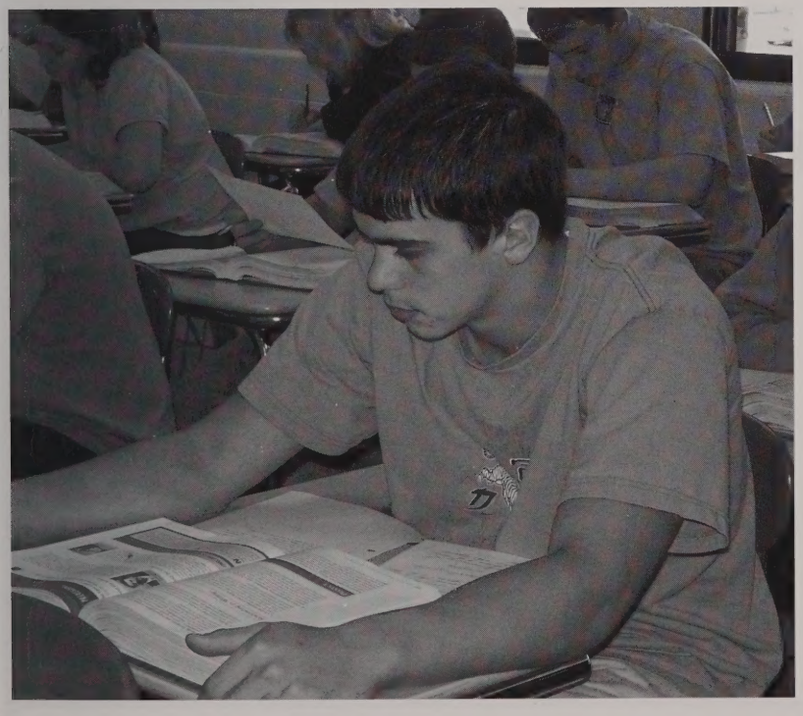
Casey Beckman, Nick Rush, Michael Custer, and Curtis Kitzmiller are in the library during Mr.Pratt's class. They are busy working on a research project.



"In my English class, we have to read stories and then get quizzed on them," Ellen Paugh, junior, said. "We write reports somtimes, but my favorite thing that we did was write a term paper."

"China is coming for us!" David Warnick tells his teacher Harry Biggs. David was showing and discussing the U.S. and our vulnerability at the current time to third world country attacks. This was a very visual and hands-on class.



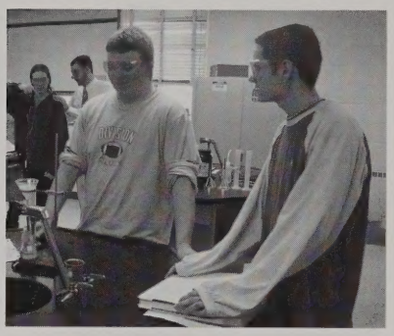


Zach Uphold works on a reading assignment for Mr. Hogan's class.

"I had Ms. White for social studies," Michael Macauley, sophomore, said. "It was one of the most fun classes that I have had at Southern." Michael is concentrating on his book work, which many Social Studies classes required to be completed at the end of each chapter.

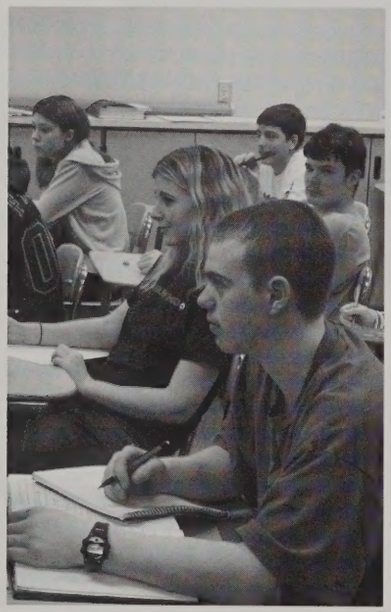
Adam Lewis is working hard in the library. Many students studied and did research in the library for their English and Social Studies classes. The library was very helpful to students who did not have use of a computer and also provided many research materials for students to use on English and Social Studies projects.

Sarah McWilliams, senior, gets a little extra help in math from Mrs. Slagle.

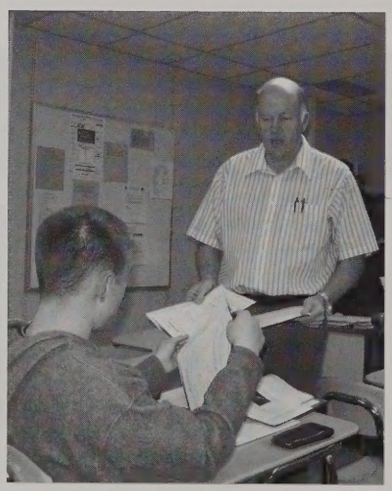


Bart Shaffer and Ryan Moorehead work very enthusiastically in Mr. Beeman's chemistry lab. Both Bart and Ryan find a great interest in chemistry.

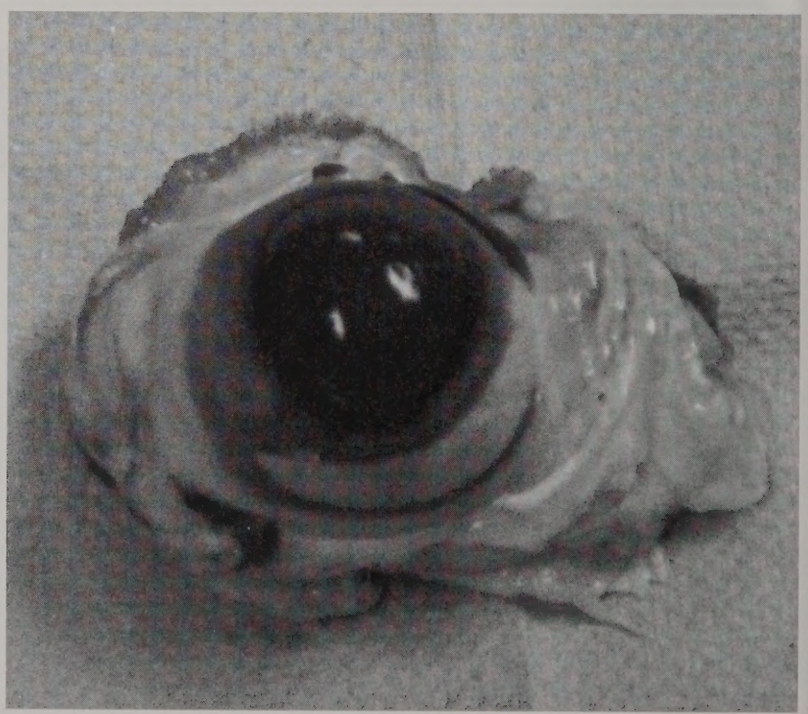
In Mr. Oxford's class, students got the chance to hold a dissected eye.



Cliff Cooper and Lynea Ingram pay attention so they can pass Mr. Krupa's class. Lynea states that "math with Mr. Krupa is high quality fun because he is a great teacher." Cliff states that "math is the greatest" because it will get him through high school and on his way to college.



Logan Lewis anxiously awaits the arrivial of his test from Mr Dave Bosley. To his amazement, Logan passed with a "B."



Mr. Oxford's class worked to dissect a cow eye during first semester.

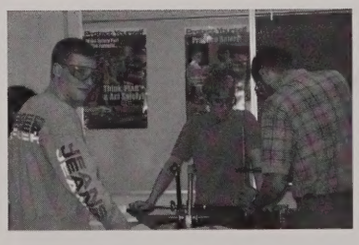
"I enjoyed it when we looked at the lens of the eye when it was laying on a piece of paper,"Andrea Beachy, junior, said. "The lens magnified the letters on the paper." After cutting into the eye, Rachel Friend and Andrea Beachy examine it.

Juniors Jeremy Durst, Ricky Curry, and senior David Glotfelty are trying to make the rest of the students in the class laugh at their wild behavior.

Ms. Teagarden helps Amanda Park with biology. Ms. Teagarden's students enjoy a hands-on approach to science, including making models out of cereal!



Mr. Beeman's class heated pennies in a zinc and water mixture to cover the pennies in zinc, giving them the appearance of gold. Other classes repeated the experiment later in the school year.

Auto Mechanics and Masonry

Getting Students Ready

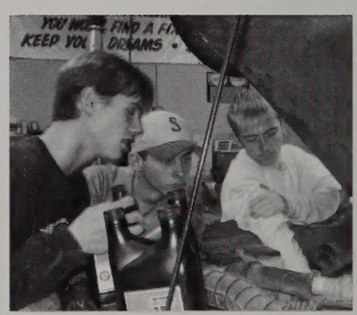
Daniel Brenneman works out in the masonry room by stirring the special cement mix. Careful hands and agility are needed to get the right cement texture.

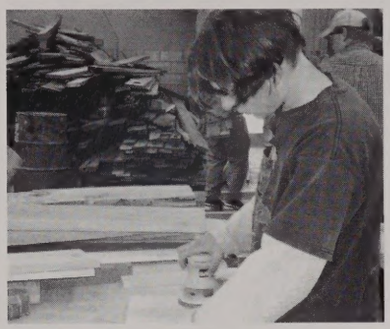
A masonry student, Joey Sliger, performs the mastered technique of laying cement blocks.

Mr. Powers checks Jason Thomas' work on this automobile. "Mr. Powers' auto mechanics class has fixed my car before," Becky Martin, senior, said. "I was glad to give inexperienced auto mechanics a chance to experiment with my car."



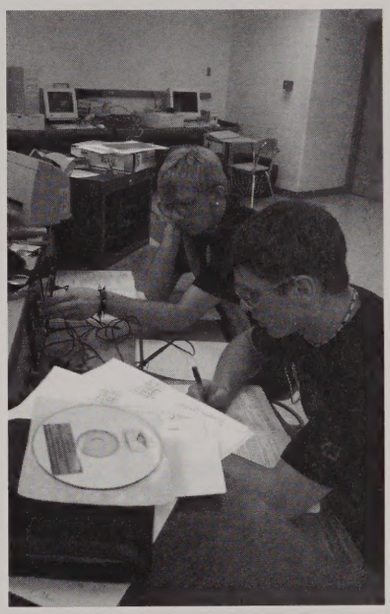
Will Janoske, Rodney Baker, and Patrick Friend examine a student's car. Students and teachers often brought their cars to the auto mechanics shop in order to get them fixed.

Adam Miller and Chris Lantz work diligently on their electronics project. "We've got ourselves a flatliner," Adam, junior, said. "Hey, what happens when you put this wire here?"

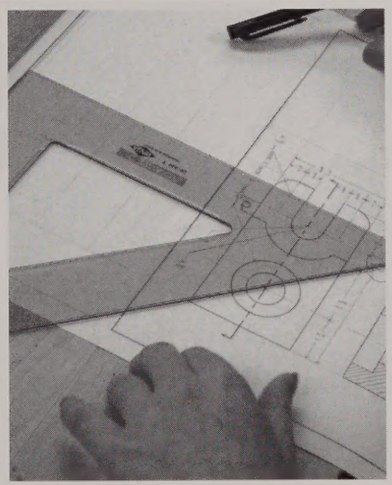


Chester Sgaggero sands a board for carpentry class. Looks like he has a lot of work ahead of him. Another carpentry project was working on a house in the local community.

Joshua McKnight shields himself with an apron while the sparks fly. He was a machine tool student this year. Mr. Liller's classes were constantly doing hands-on assignments while in the shop.



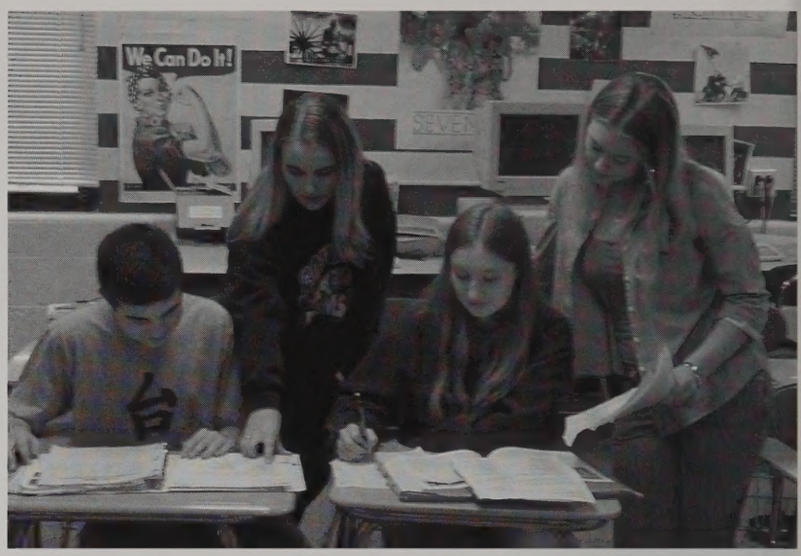
Matt Howell and Andrew Hill, both juniors, team up in class to impress Mr. Cosner with their electronics work. Like other vocational classes in the school, Mr. Cosner gave his students the opportunity to work in the lab.

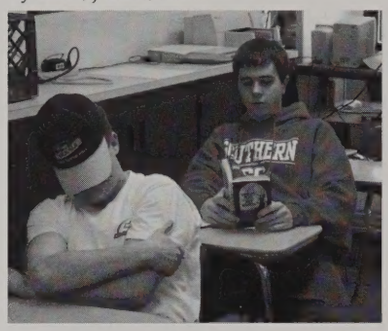


A day's work is complete when Heather Sersland puts the final touches on her work. Drafting requires a great deal of precision and artistic skill.

Brad Dugan and Steve Knepp work on completing their assignment in drafting class. Erin Frantz oversees Heather Sersland and Danny O'Brien as they also strive for the highest grade in class. Drafting is taught by Mr. Freyman.

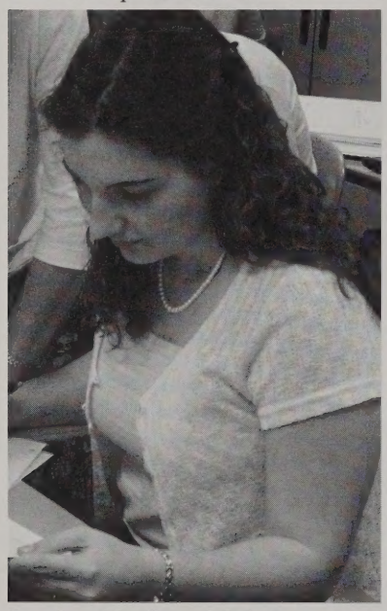
Adam Day, Lyndsie Rush, Joann Lewis and Ashleigh James are students in the A.P. U.S. History class. "Learning about the colonial period was very fun and was one of my favorite parts of the class," Lyndsie, junior, said.



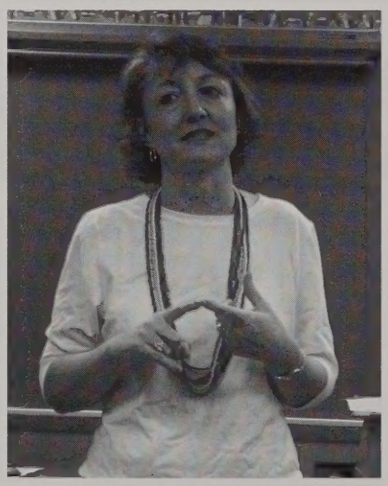


Chase Ashby dozes off as Tom Crozier reads his book in English class. "I love taking A.P. classes because people think I actually do work," said Tom. "For me, minimum work equals maximum results."

Below, Katie Richter studies for her A.P. Biology test. "The class was very challenging but also quite rewarding," Katie said. "I worked very hard to maintain one of the highest grades in the class." Despite a challenging schedule, Katie was one of the top students in the senior class.



Jonathan Neville and D.R. Parsons test out the catapult they built for a project in Mr. Mayfield's A.P. Physics class. "Our horse catapult won the competition for the longest field goal," Jonny said. "We broke the previous record and established ourselves as the champions."



Ms. Kim Kuhn is Southern's A.P. Calculus teacher. "Ms. Kuhn was a lot of fun in calculus," Daniel Cathell, senior, said. "We always had a great time learning and studying for the A.P. tests in May."

Bryan Schwalm finishes one of his fine masterpieces for Ms. Garris' A.P. English class. "I enjoyed the challenging aspects of my English class this year," Bryan said. "Ms. Garris taught me a lot of lessons that will help me with my future in college."

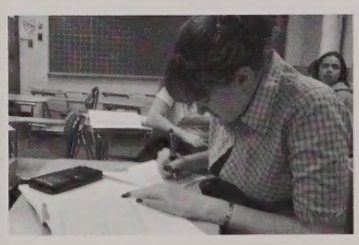
Jennifer Bosley and Ashley Liller are working on some classwork in A.P. Calculus. "The class was tough," Ashley Liller, senior, said. "But Jen (Bosley) helped me, and much of the class, with our work." Jennifer had one of the highest grades in the class.



LaWanda Harvey is one of eleven students who took English classes through the Distance Learning Lab. The classes were taught by Professor Virginia Broaddus via technology. Mrs. Linda May Gerrard was the technical assistant for the class.

not all fun and games

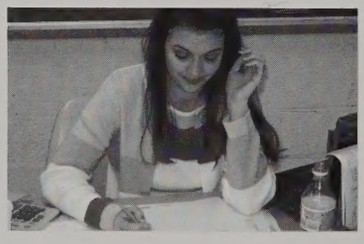
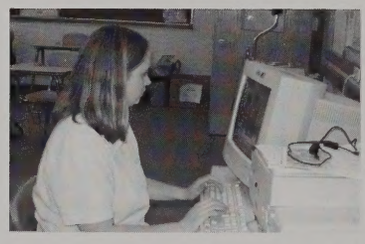
Photographer Marla Watkins tests her new camera on business editor, Ashley Keeys. Ashley organized the sale of business ads and fundraisers for the Highlander staff. She also acted as its treasurer.



Mrs. Savage, the newspaper teacher, is adding the finishing touches on the senior editions. The senior edition is an additional responsibility of the Acorn staff. The newspaper also features a 50th anniversary edition in the spring of this year.



Mrs. White, the new yearbook teacher is helping a student add alittle more detail to her page for the yearbook. The digital camera cord is visible on top of the scanner. The Highlander staff enjoyed the convenience of digital photography this year.

Adam Miller, a web page design student, works hard on his own web page. The web page designers worked in Mrs. Savage's room along with the newpaper staff.

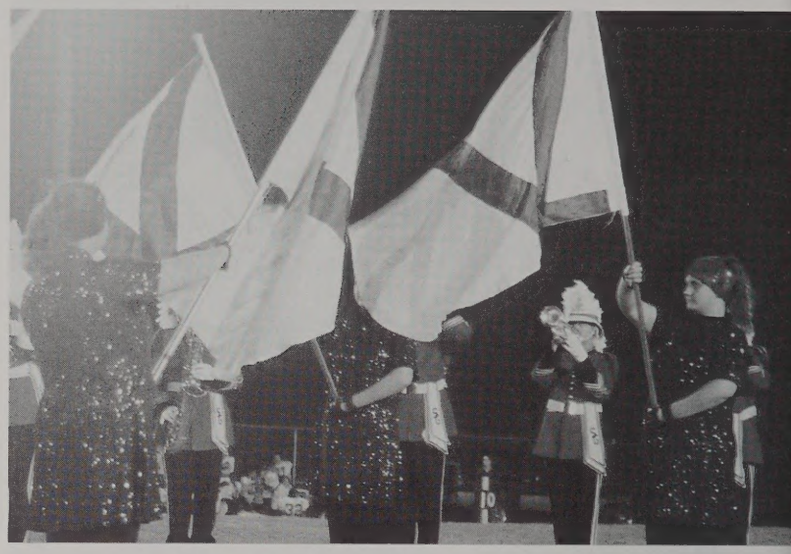
Matt Burner shows us all that yearbook class isn't always about deadlines and hardwork. We also have some fun.

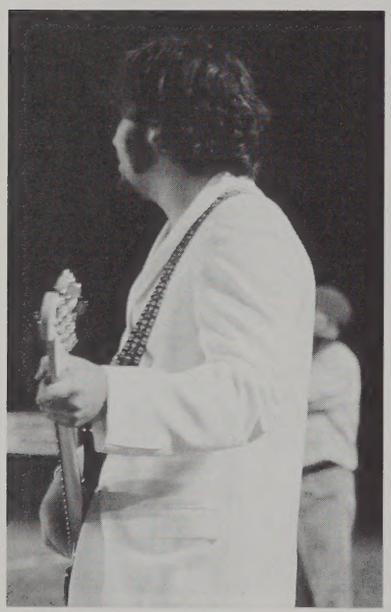
Sam Cavalier and Brandon Proudfoot are busily working on their newspaper projects for Mrs.Savage.

Twila Ashby and Stephanie Keenan of the color guard stand with flags up to welcome the Homecoming Court. The marching band as a whole helped in many areas, including pep rallies.



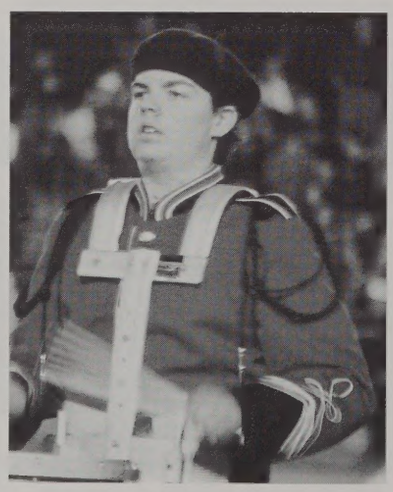
Erin Oxford and Kayla Legeer made up part of the pit section. Erin and Kayla wore costumes that were representative of the Egyptian theme behind Aida.

Pat Murray, an accomplished guitarist at Southern High, played electric bass guitar for the marching band. Pat has been an active member throughout his high school career.



Members of the marching band marched enthusiastically across the football field. Props for the field show included a pyramid and an Aida symbol.

Nathan Kitzmiller, a drum line member, pounds his drum during halftime. The audience watched, amazed at how fast the drum beat was.



Suzanne Gilbert, drum major, takes the field to assist her adoring band. Suzanne brought high energy to the role of drum major and scored first place in all but one competition.

Andrew Hill strikes a dashing pose with his leading lady, Shana Sines. Andrew and Shana danced together during all of the marching band's field shows.

In Harmony

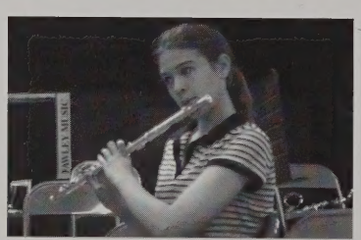
Rachale French and Angel Sharpless are among the talented musicians in the clarinet section. They are practicing for the spring concert.



Sarah Anderson aspires to be a professional musician. Sarah adds her melody to the flute line in Southern's band.

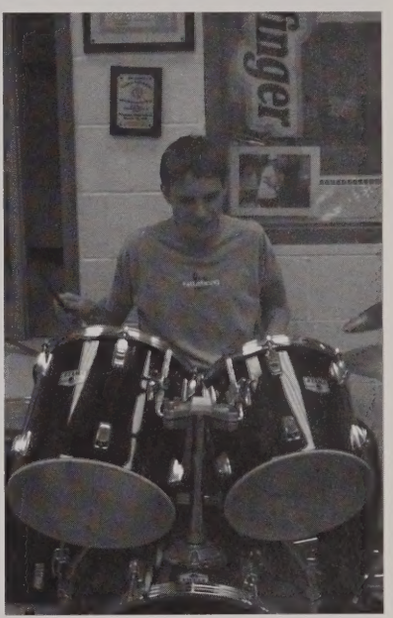
The woodwind section is intent on not letting the brass overpower them. With the concert not far away, the group polishes the rough spots in its repertoire.

The brass try to blend with the saxes, hoping for a successful concert. Sitting in front of a trombone player can be especially risky.

Mr. Clever makes sure Holly Reese, Aaron Sines, Melissa Durst, and Rikkilee Rose all begin on the correct cue.

Brett Lambert takes advantage of school rehearsal time because he wants to spend his free time after school out with friends. Uh -- no hats in school, Brett!

Matt Frederick is among the percussionists at Southern.



The band gathers after an assembly for a group picture. The band provided music every assembly.

Pat Murray shows off a few of his new tunes. Pat is a member of both the marching and stage band, but also performs with his own band locally.

Aaron Sines, Rikkilee Rose, and Ashley Shaffer work on a difficult passage of music.

Oh, the things we do for fun!

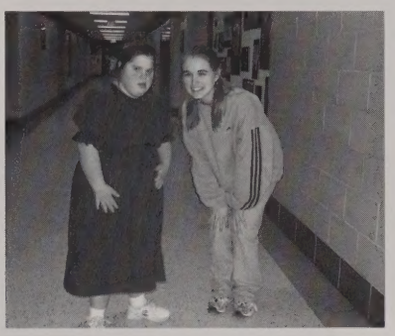
Christie Hamilton is enjoying her lunch with Melanie Smith in Mrs. Deb Friend's room. Many of the best buddy pairs go down and eat lunch with their buddies or just spend time hanging out.

Zechariah McPhail and his buddy Jerry Sweitzer have fun in the water. Jerry gets a piggy back ride through the shallow water at Wisp pool.

Buddies Kelly Wade, Lyndsie Rush, and Deborah Petersheim enjoy their pizza made by the foods class for the Best Buddies Luncheon. Jerry Sweitzer and Zach Mcphail are having a good time talking about what they are going to do later in the day.

Sarah Moore, Carrie Kisner, and Jessica Reams hang on the pool edge for a group shot at the Wisp Resort's pool area.

Caroline Britton, Melanie Smith, and Christina Hamilton walk toward the movie with anticipation. Peter Pan Returns was the movie of the day and all appreciated the efforts of the staff of the Garrett 8 Cinemas to make thier stay special.



Lyndsie Rush takes a walk down the hall with Deborah Petersheim. Favorite activities of Best Buddies iinclude taking walks and spending time in Mrs. Friend's room.

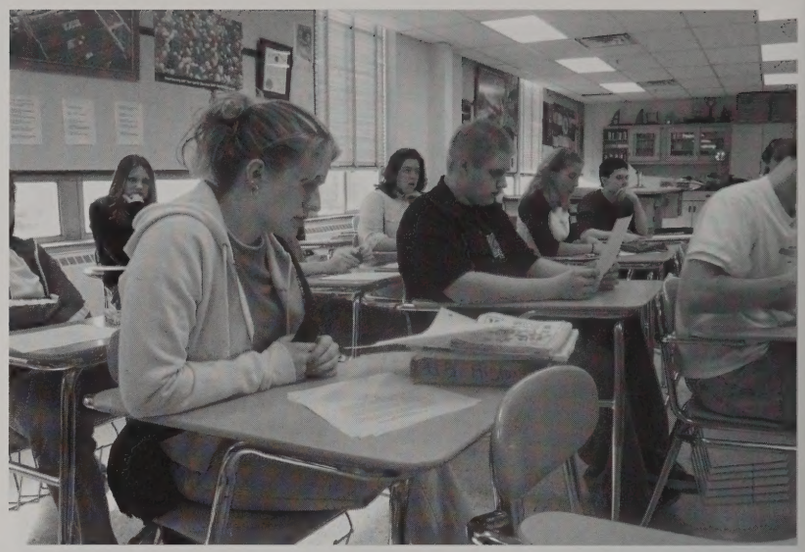
Zach McPhail, Jerry Sweitzer, Melanie Smith, Tracey Wolfe and Christina Hamilton all wait to get popcorn and soda before the movie.

Robert Broadwater was one of many who zoomed around the track at Smiley's in the go-carts. The students returned at the end of May to play mini-golf and laser tag.

Mr. Huber and Mr. Woods enjoy the meal prepared by the foods classes for the Best Buddies luncheon. The administration has been very active in the program. Mr. Woods also came down to the Wisp during the swimming trip.

Tracey Wolfe and Brandy Artice enjoyed the pizza and dessert served by the foods staff at one of the luncheons. Many of the buddies really got to know each other during the ice breaker luncheon.

With the rest of Student Council, junior Kristen Oxford pays close attention while Laura Hollingsworth goes through the agenda for the meeting.



Freshman Ashley Stuck and sophomore Curt Taylor listen attentively as the minutes from the previous meeting are read.

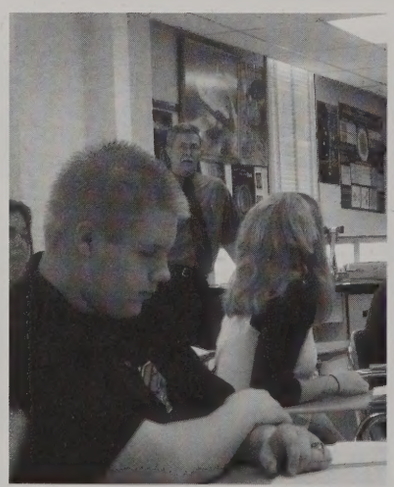
Student Council President Laura Hollingsworth, Vice President Brian Crabtree, Secretary Kara Rush, and Assistant Treasurer Lyndsie Rush listen as the student council representatives give class reports.

Jason Johnson, junior, always works hard to come up with ideas to improve the high school for both present and future students. "I really enjoy contributing ideas that affect our school," Jason said.



Student Council always works hard to voice the opinions of the student body. When an issue needs to be addressed, the students can rest assured that the Student Council will argue their case.

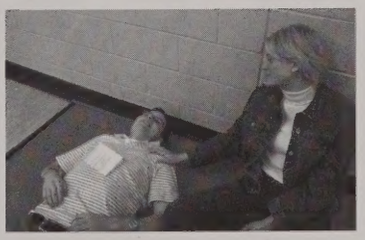
Juniors Anthony Oliverio and Brian Crabtree comfort Alison Ulino, senior, after she gave blood.



"I do not participate in giving blood," Marla Watkins, senior, commented, "but I try to help those who are scared or just need a laugh." Marla made sure to comfort Jeremy Durst.

Becky Martin, Megan Burner, Riff Browning, and Lindsey Perry enjoyed their visit to the snack table after giving blood. "The best part about the Blood Mobile was the food, but I think I ate too much," Megan Burner, senior, said.

in with the new

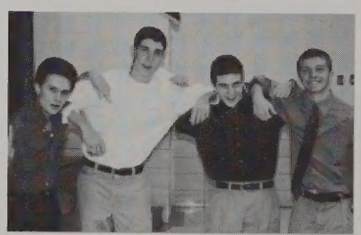
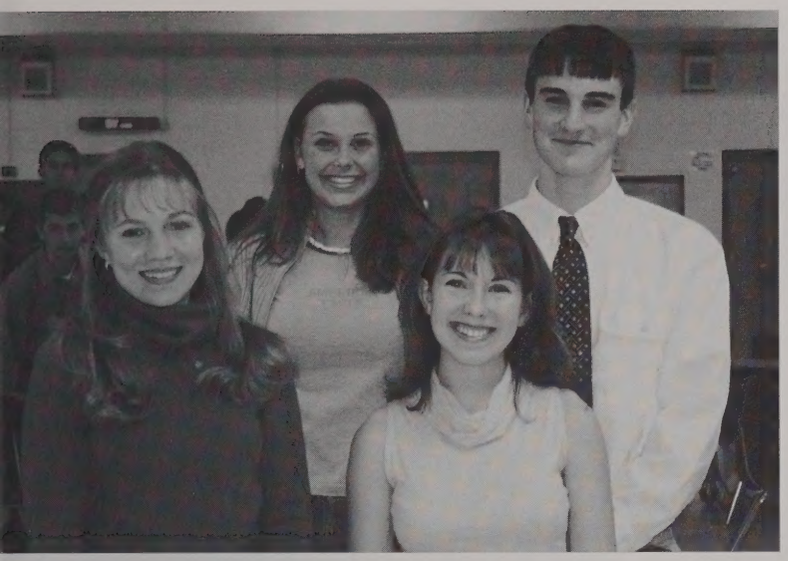
Dan Cathell and Bryan Schwalm enjoy refreshments provided by Mrs. Shipe at the NHS induction. NHS provided several activities at which its members could socialize and enjoy themselves.

The four qualities of an NHS member are leadership, service, scholarship, and character. Molly Thayer lights a candle representing service, a quality that NHS members demonstrated often.

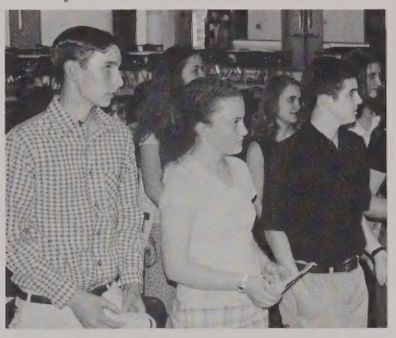


Relaxing after being inducted into NHS are juniors Ben Peracchio, Chris Lantz, Adam Day, and Steve Knepp. "I felt really honored to be inducted into NHS," Adam Day said. "We all worked really hard to reach this point."

Most of the members of NHS were close friends. "Things like induction, trash cleanup, rotary, and the other activities NHS partakes in gave us a chance to serve the community," Miriam Sincell, senior, said, "but it also provided a lot of time to spend with my friends."

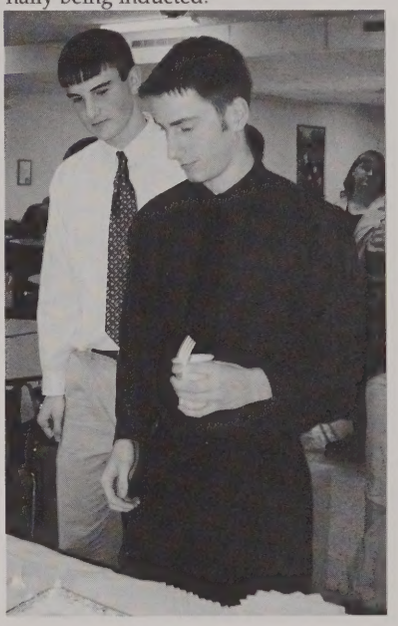


The members of NHS voted for secretary Molly T ayer, historian Suzanne Gilbert, vice president Jenny Hickman, and president Brian Fike at the beginning of the year. Each of them carried out his responsibilities to the best of his ability, right down to the excellent photo album created by Suzanne.



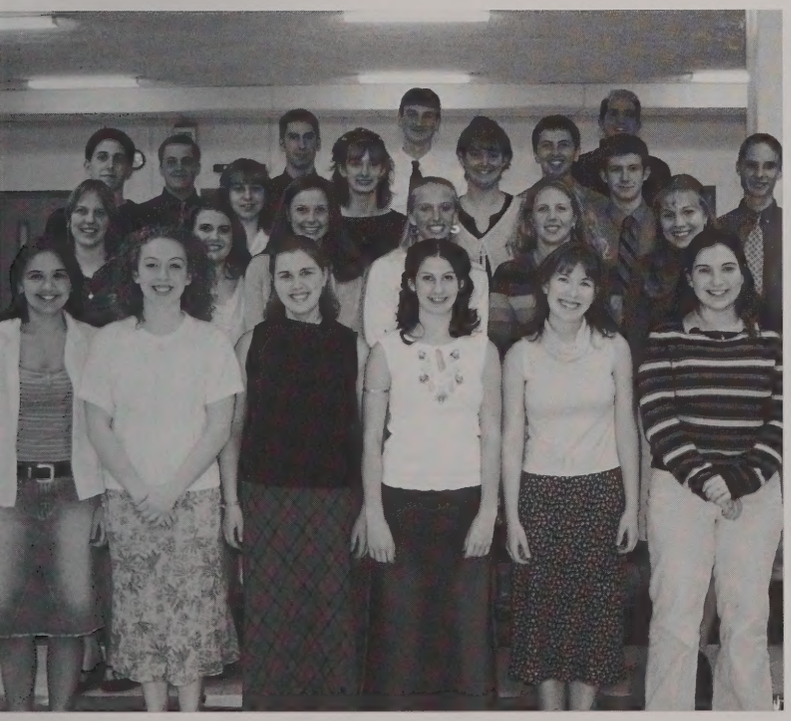
Juniors Neil Cardiff, Emily Cosner, and Adam Day hang on president Brian Fike's every word as he recites the pledge that they will have to repeat. "The words to the pledge were printed on the back of our program," Emily Cosner said. "It would have been really hard to go wrong."

NHS had the pleasure of inducting seventeen new members into the society. "In order to make it to induction,"Chris Lantz, junior, said, "we had to attend a lot of meetings and do a lot of service projects." In spite of the work involved, each member found gratification in finally being inducted.



Other than the thrill of bringing new people into this group characterized by academic excellence, one of the best parts of National Honor Society induction was, of course, the food. Brian Fike and Jonathan Neville wait anxiously in line to received the delicious refreshments.

Mr. Woods was an avid supporter of the National Honor Society throughout the year. His speech to the society at induction was both moving and encouraging. He commended NHS for their work over the year and challenged the new members to continue thelegacy of diligent service.



The senior members of National Honor society have volunteered many hours in meetings and service to the community. After cleaning up highways, collecting canned food, working with rotary, and inducting new members, these students are prepared to hand down their duties to the junior members.

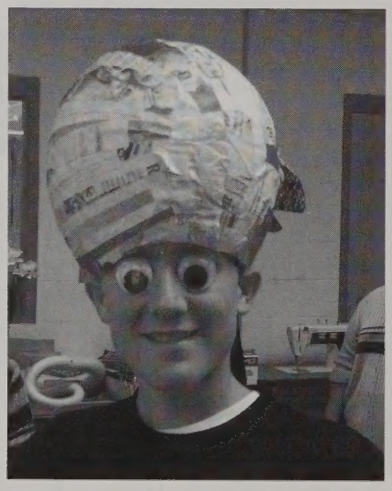
Ed Clemons helps Mr. Clever keep things under control and moving smoothly during chorus class. Ed has been Mr. Clever's assistant for his entire four years here.

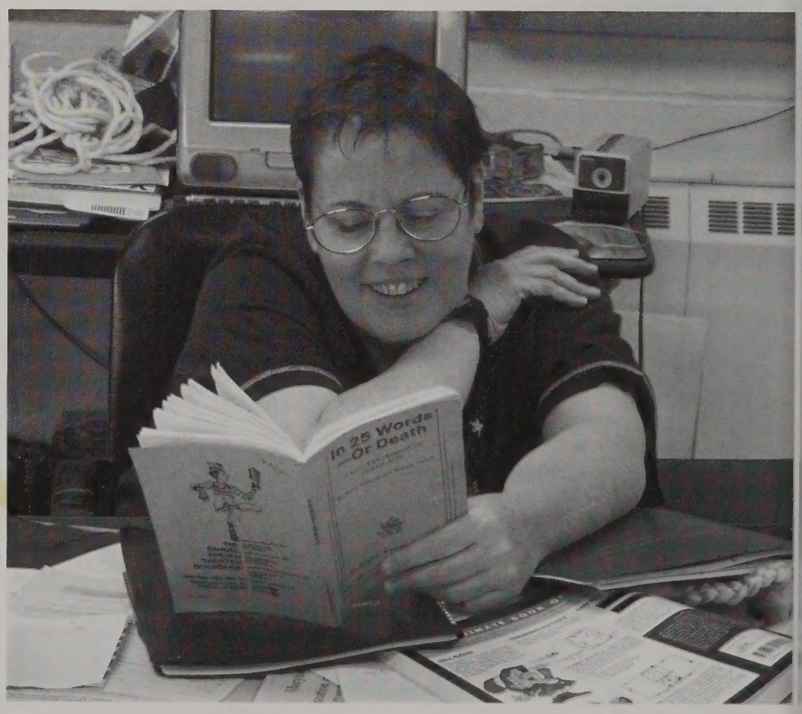
Mrs. Pratt's art class made masks showing realities of life with a school of fish and one crab representing an authority figure.

Mrs. Avery's Theatre II class first semester pose for a group shot. John Parker, Doug Stephens, Suzanne Gilbert, Craig Artice, John Armstong, Clinton Durham, and Katie Richter were among Southern's actors this year.

Cliff Cooper and Lauren Jolles play a warm-up game in Ms. Avery's Theatre I class. Students in Theatre I prepare and present mimes, lip syncs, and hand puppet shows.

Matt Ashby sports one of the head puppets being made in art this year. Mrs. Pratt's class used the masks to create plays dealing with life.





Ms. Avery reads the school play with her students. Ms. Avery has taught at SHS for many years. Not only has she been a theatre teacher, but she has been a mentor and a friend. When she retires she will be greatly missed by the students who care for her. And one day, Ms. Avery, students will find out your middle name. ONE DAY!!!!

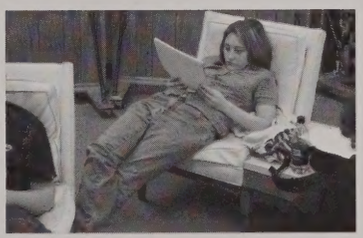
During Mrs. Pratt's class, sophomore Grant McDonald shows sophomore Charles French how to properly paint a fish mask. Ms. Ringler is another multi-talented art teacher who also teaches art history and English.

Mr. Clever enjoys his job in music class where he directs and teaches and directs both band and chorus.



Christina Guthrie slouches in her chair during Theatre II while reading a play. Many students enjoyed reading plays and watching Shakespeare.

Natalie Vanderbilt, Kim Durban, and Christen Coddington work on their art projects while discussing the next step.

Some of Southern's seniors spent their fourth period making this very spirited and festive sign to support the boys' basketball team.

The week before prom, the local fire department and rescue squad staged a crash scene in front of the school to discourage drunk driving.

Brian Fike, senior, participates in one of the many games at the eleventh annual after prom party.

Fall Homecoming, pep assemblies, basketball games, Prom night... you were there. These events, along with countless others filled students' agendas once again. Although pastimes varied, Southern High School provided unique opportunities for students to participate in...and we were there.

2001-2002

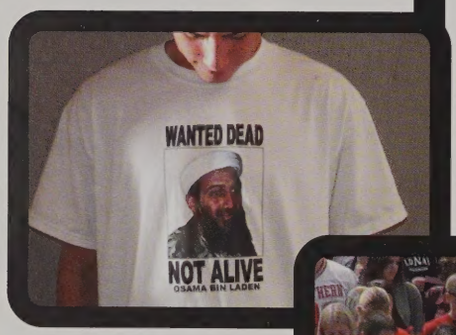
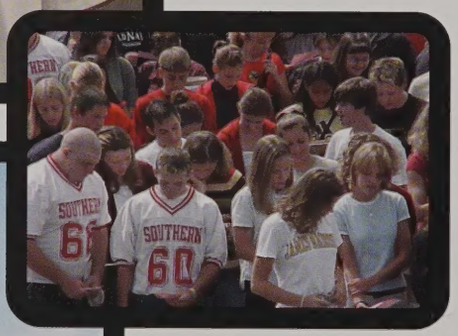
Gina Reeves, senior, shows her pariotism by displaying numerous American flags on her truck.Below, Lindsey Perry enters Chad Panther's car. The Panthers chose to paint American flags as a symbol of freedom on the rear windows of their Jeep Grand Cherokee.

The yearbook company Jostens joined countless other companies in showing their support for the families and friends of those affected by giving away free patriotic posters and signs. This poster, displayed just outside Mr. Mayfield's room, is an example of these generous gifts.



Tobi Stoner, senior, models his recent purchase. In addition to being united in light of this terrible tragedy, U.S. citizens were also unified in their hatred of Bin Laden.



A ceremony was held on September 14th to remember the victims of the events that had occurred just three days before. Students were dismissed early from third period to observe a moment of silence and reflection as they gathered around the flag at half-mast. The flags remained lowered for weeks after the ceremony.

The morning of September 11, 2001 began just like any other day. Students, not only at Southern, but across the nation , awoke and began their normal routine. However, by the end of the day, citizens around the world were glued to the television when news of apparent terrorist attacks blocked the airways. The results of the attacks were devastating.

Early in the morning, a plane crashed into the north tower of the World Trade Center. Word of this seemingly accidental incident quickly spread and classrooms around the school began to turn on their televisions to various news broadcasts. Moments later, the second tower was hit by another plane. By ten o'clock, all classrooms were tuned in to the news only to see that the Pentagon was also hit by an airplane and a fourth airplane had gone down in nearby Somerset County.

Although nothing was confirmed at that time, the blame was placed on terrorist groups headed by Osama Bin Laden. The terrorists had tried to bring our country down and break us. However, despite thousands of American casualties, the U.S.A. was unified more now than ever. Cards, pictures, flowers, and flags began piling up on the streets of New York just days after the attack.

We would like to thank Matt Sincell, a graduate of SHS, for his contribution to this page. Matt was in New York at the time of this world-changing event and provided our staff with first-hand photos of the collapsing World Trade Center and its effects on the residents of New York City.

Southern High School athletics also showed their support after the terrorist attacks. A member of the football team displays a memorial flag and a "United We Stand" sticker on his helmet. The girls' varsity soccer team wears red, white, and blue ribbons in their game just days after September eleventh. Following along to "God Bless America," Brandon Louden and Brandi Shaffer mourn the tremendous loss of life accompanied by students and faculty. Leading the school in song are: Eileen Mouyard, Lyndsie Rush, Mrs. Kim Rush, and Miriam Sincell. At the beginning of the ceremony, members of the band marched proudly carrying the American flag.

Flakes and Flurries

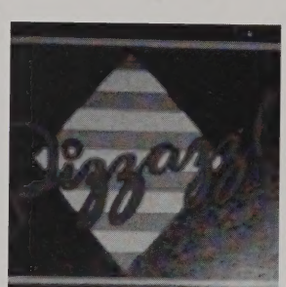
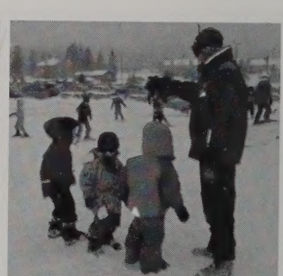
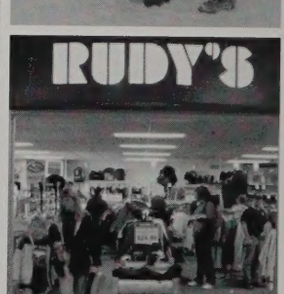
The Wisp is where many students spend their weekends. Staff Writers: Ashley Keeys and Marla Watkins







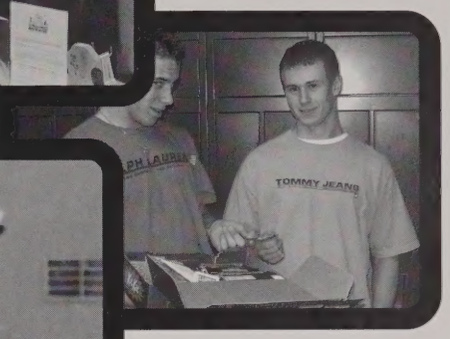
The viewof the Wisp on many weekends includes Southern High students. Kevin Goralski poses for the camera as he gets ready to suit up to go snowboarding. Rex Hoalcraft instructs his students on how to brake while skiing.

Many hours of winter days were spent on the slopes at the Wisp. Some students felt that the Wisp was the greatest thing in Garrett County and gave them something to do besides going to Wal Mart. Even those who couldn't ski could enjoy the new tube run, the resort's latest attraction.

"The Wisp is a great place," Gina Reeves, senior, said. "I love working there and, most of all, skiing there with all of my friends. It is a great place to just sit back and relax." A lot of students found their weekends consisted of meeting their friends at the Wisp.

Even though there wasn't much snowfall this winter, the Wisp was still busy because they made their own snow. The Wisp brought many smiles to its customers.

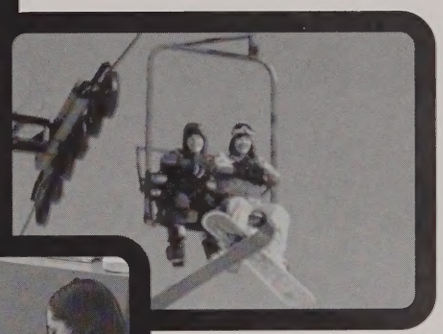
Gina Reeves gets her extra cash by working as a cashier. "I do everything from selling tickets to selling rentals and lessons, but mostly I deal with pushy tourons."

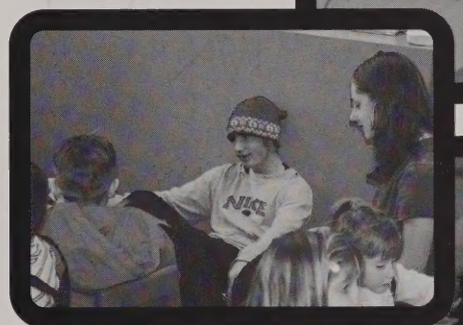


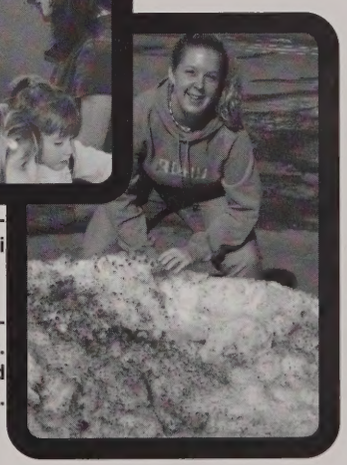
Tobi Stoner and Dustin Miller are working together to raise money for the Blind Skiers Olympics. Many students came together to make this important event possible.

Scott Bolyard poses in his new ski hat. "I love the Wisp. It is such a fun place," Scott, senior,said.

Kenzie Lee and Brandie Long enjoying their day at the Wisp by riding the chairlift together.





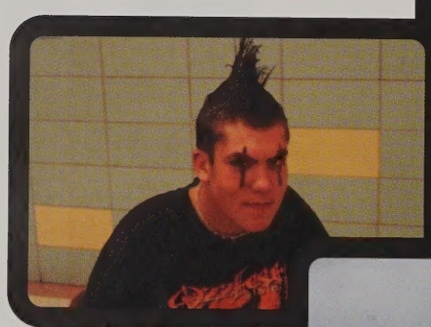


Bubba Lemley prepares the children for their first lesson of ski safety.

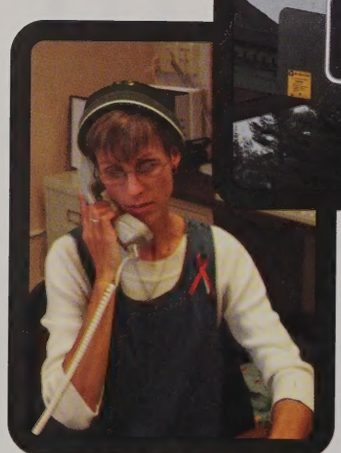
Jodi Kulak enjoys many weekends at the Wisp with her friends. However, she is disappointed about the lack of snow this year.

Feeling kind of crabby today Mr. Bender? Of course not! Mr. Bender is showing his spirit by wearing his all-time famous crab hat. Why is he pointing to Afghanistan on a map? His reasoning was that we've all been crabby towards the people from there because of the terrorist attacks.

Junior Brittney Friend, and sophomore Nora Nichols also wore some pretty funky clothes for crazy day. Their outfits made from bits and pieces of old dance costumes were pretty creative, huh?! That's the way to show your school spirit. You go, girls!



Nice hair, man! Looks like he could poke someone with that doo. Senior, Joshua Lilley was a little different for crazy day. Instead of a funky outfit, he had a cool but crazy doo. Glad to see you have school spirit, Josh.

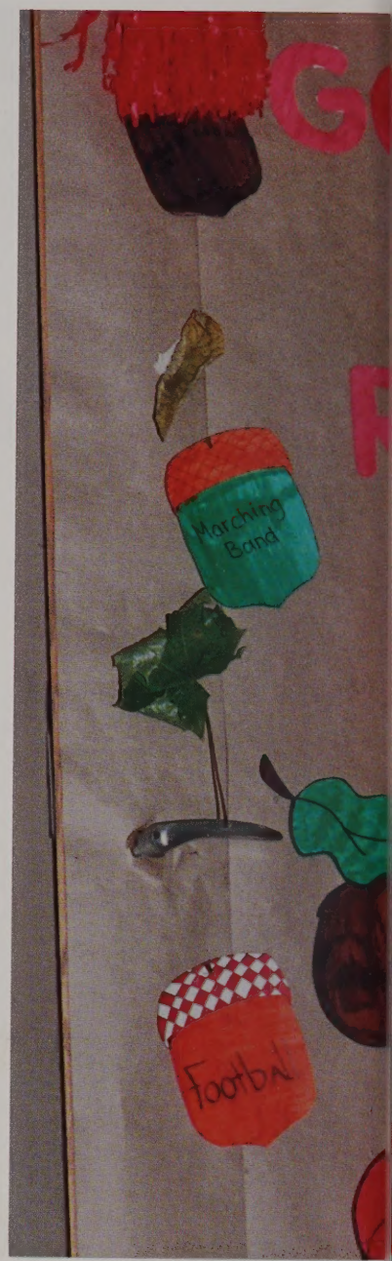


Mrs. Slaubaugh is one of our new staff members. She is the secretary of the main office. She wasn't afraid to show her pride. Nice hat, Mrs. Slaubaugh, and welcome to SHS!

Who's got the spirit? Southern Ram fans have the spirit. The week of October 1st through October 4th was filled with fans pumped for the fall homecoming football game that was scheduled for Friday, October 5th. There were many students and staff members who participated in this week of spirit. Senior Lawanda Harvey commented," I believe it's the teachers' and other organizations' way to demonstrate school pride. They encourage students to show their school pride by participating in the various activities."

To kick off this event, Monday was hat day and Tuesday was pajama day. Junior Holly Reese added," I like pajama day the best because we get to come to school in our most comfy clothes." Next, Wednesday was crazy day and Thursday red and white day. One participant, senior David Wolf replied," I participated in spirit week. I happened to wear red on red and white day!"

Students and teachers also participated in a door decorating contest. Teachers were asked to help their first period students decorate their classroom doors with materials that showed "Southern Ram Spirit." The first place prize of this contest went to Mrs. Gibson and her first period class, who received doughnuts and juice as their reward. All doors were decorated nicely, and the judging proved to be quite difficult.



Is it Halloween? Nope, just a crazy day at good ol' Southern High. Sophomores Laryn Hanline and Brandi Arnett sport their craziness with a creative outfit and hairstyle. Many students put together crazy outfits similar to these.

glory days

Umm... is it bedtime? Just kidding! Believe it or not, pajama day had a great turnout for spirit week. Freshman Jadyn Swerbinsky was not embarassed to wear her pj's to school. Senior Lindsey Perry wore her hard hat for hat day. Pretty cute! This beautifully designed door that was created by Mrs. Gibson's first period class really shows what SHS is really about and how much we love our athletes. The last day of the week that was full of spirit was red and white day. Many students wore red and white shirts, or their SHS sweatshirts, to show their spirit.

us . . .

Many friendships that are formed within the four years of high school continue to last for many more years. True friends are those to whom you can reveal your deepest secrets, on whom you can depend during the darkest of times, and with whom you can celebrate triumphs. FRIENDS stands for...Forever, Reliable, Infinite, Entertaining, Never-ending, Devoted, and Sincere.

Senior Marla Watkins shared, "I really appreciate those who put up with me because not a whole lot of people can. They are who I consider to be my true friends."

Junior Aaron Wells agrees, and adds, " Real friends don't stab each other in the back; they just jump on them" (which he then illustrated, as seen in the center circle).

"Friends do everything together, and you are able to tell them just about everything. They never leave your side and are always there," stated Brandi Shaffer. The bond of friendship is hard to come by and those special enough can never be broken.

Tobi Stoner,senior, stated, "Bryson and I have known each other since we were eleven years old. We had a lot of fun and a great year with football. I never got the chance to stiff arm him in practice, and this was a perfect opportunity to do so."

Senior Chris Miller shows us just how much he adores his good friend Brandi Arnett. Chris explains, "Brandi and I have known each other for seven years. Her mom used to babysit my brothers and me. We can tell each other anything and are more like brother and sister than just best friends."

Juniors Andrew Feather, Nathan Swartzentruber, and Mark Kight act cool for the camera. These boys hang out together all the time. Nathan told us that they enjoy skiing, mountain biking, paintball wars, golfing, and injuring themselves together. He said, "We've been friends forever, or at least for as long as I can remember."

Awww...doesn't this look like a great group of girls? Sophomores Becca Flanagan, Justine Pagenhardt, and Robin Gregg have been good friends for a long time. They enjoy playing on the basketball team together and just hanging out and shopping.

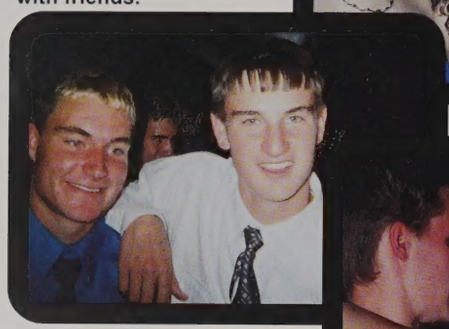
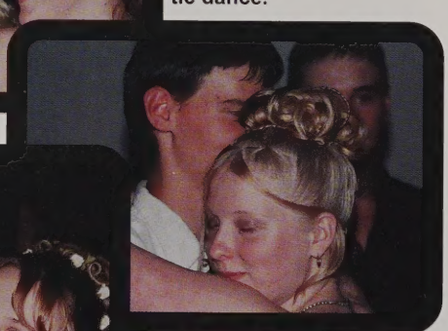
Freshmen Ashley Stuck, Jadyn Swerbinsky, and Megan Swartzentruber pose for a picture. Megan said that "the dance was fun and the decorations were excellent."
Riff Browning and Brian Fike are just two of the many students who took time away from the dance to talk with friends.

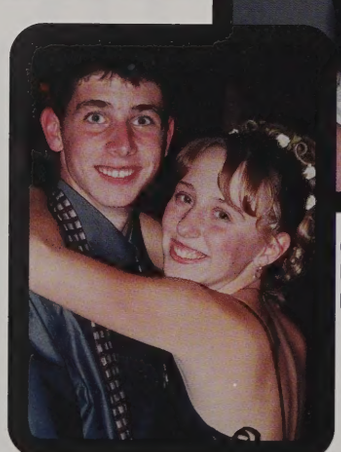


Junior Russell Gift and sophomore Christen Coddington take a moment to be together during a slow song. Couples and friends chose this time to be together.

Melissa Ferguson and Becky Pannell dance under the bubbles provided by Music Express. The bubbles and music proved to be a big hit.

Some of the best times at Homecoming were the slow dances people shared. Juniors Heather Sersland and Tom Bittinger share a romantic dance.





Chris Lantz, junior, and Katrina Iden, senior, strike a pose on the dance floor.

Homecoming is a time when people get dressed up and visit with friends while listening to good music. "Homecoming was pretty okay this year," junior Christie Hamilton said, "despite the fact that my date ditched me after the first slow song and I haven't spoken to him since."

Whether you went because of your date or the decorations, most people had fun. The cheerleaders spent many hours making the cafeteria look great so everyone would have a good time. "Homecoming is a great evening for everybody to let loose and have fun," Brittney Friend, junior, said.

Juniors Theresa Lucas, Shannon Browning, Kristen Oxford, and Britney Ashby get down to the hip music. "We all had a great time at the dance together. We even danced with some new people," Britney shared.

Our Lords and Ladies

Fall Homecoming 2001

Ram Fans: Loud -N- Proud

Southern Football Fans Show Their Support at the Weekly Friday Games Staff Writer: Stephanie Niner

Seniors Kara Rush, Alison Ulino, and Nick Wathall are all smiles. Many students found football games to be a perfect opportunity to hang out and talk with friends.

Juniors Joe Davis , Brent Niner, David Glotfelty, Marci Biggs, and sophomore Ashley Dick smile warmly despite the cold. Many cheerleaders take advantage of halftime to socialize with their friends.

A common sight every Friday night, Ram football fans scream and holler with great enthusiasm.

Adorned with hats, gloves, and blankets, freshmen Brandy Curry, Matt Savage, Felicia Trzicak, Scott Wildesen, Darwin Bennett, and Josh Lear show their Southern support at an away game at Tucker.

The Southern Rams football team has been like a rollercoaster this season with their share of ups and downs. Ram fans, however, have been right there behind the team for the entire ride.

Every home game includes the same sights and sounds. With rarely a single seat left in the stands, the stadium is constantly filled with shouts and cheers, followed by applause.

Southern supporters give new meaning to the phrase "the crowd goes wild."

Huddled together are senior Jonny Neville, junior Chris Lantz, and freshmen Justine Pagenhardt, Julia Bosley, and Tray Rives.

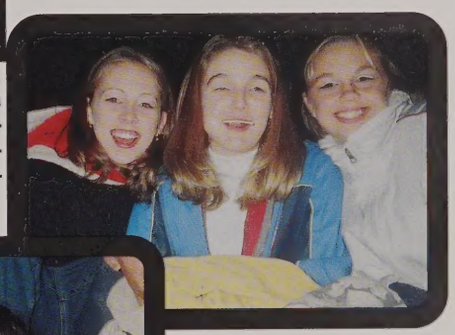
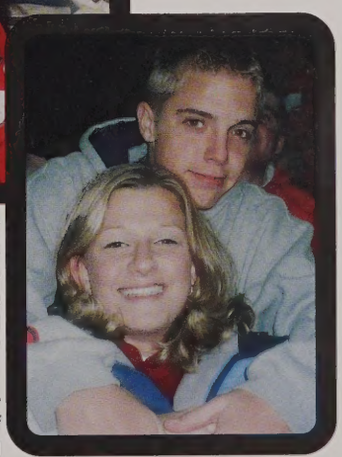
All bundled up from head to toe are senior JJ Bolyard and junior Erika Steyer. Erika stated, "Football games are just a fun place to go to socialize and freeze your butt off."



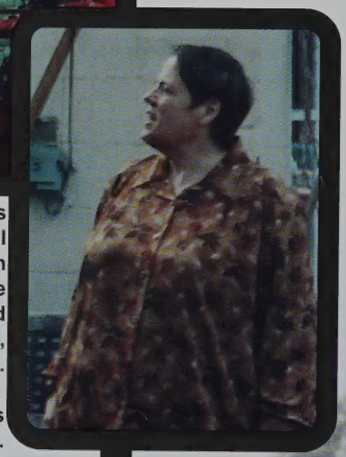
Freshmen Nicole Albert, Megan Hoff, and Jessica Crosco have a blast cheering on the team. Nicole commented, "I enjoy supporting our football team."



Laid back and relaxing at the end of the week are juniors Brea Byers and Marci Biggs. Brea finds that "football games are a nice way of ending the school day and starting the weekend."

Junior Sam Skeweris and freshman Tray Rives are just one of the many couples that spend time together at games.

Mr. Cosner rides in style. "It was an honor to be in the parade and I was proud to represent all of the Garrett County teachers in the parade," Mr. Cosner said.



"The Autumn Glory Parade is one of the largest parades I have been in so far. It was fun seeing friends and family in the crowd and riding on the old tractor." Sarah Pysell, senior, was the Farm Queen this year.

Ms. Avery looks like she enjoys the festivities at Autumn Glory. This year Our Town Theatre had a concession stand where they sold hot dogs, popcorn, soda, and other refreshments.

Chase Ashby pulls the FFA float with his nice Allis-Chalmers tractor, which got a bath especially for this occasion.

Candace Blamble and Brittaney Wotring enjoy the weather by kicking back and relaxing on the straw.

Anthony Oliverio hangs off the side of the Our Town Theatre float and pretends to fall.

"There was a lot more involved than I expected. I had to attend many events, but it was worth it because I get a scholarship and I got to know a few more people better," said Jenny Hickman, senior. The Autumn Glory King was Guy Joseph from Southern and the Queen was Bridget Frezee from Northern. The Prince was Steve Kersten from Northern and the Princess was Jennifer Hickman from Southern.

The Shriners cars are something that many people remember as part of the Autumn Glory Grand Feature Parage. Others try not to remember the little cars that ride around in figure eights.

"I'm glad I was in the Autumn Glory Parade. It kept me away from the Shriners cars; those things freak me out. Those creepy little cars are right up there with clowns and ice cream trucks on the list of things that scare me," junior Christie Hamilton said. Whether you enjoy the Shriners cars or happen to be scared of them, they will stick in most people's memory for a long time.

"The only reason I went to Autumn Glory was to see my friends. I don't see them much anymore since we have different classes," Cheri Dever, sophomore, said. Friends and family were a big reason students went to the parade this year -- or maybe it was the candy. "I like Autumn Glory when they throw candy. It is great because you get hyper and everybody needs a good sugar rush," said freshman James Shahan.

While most of us enjoyed the festivities at the Autumn Glory Parade, some were unable to attend. "I have gone to the Autumn Glory Parade every year. This is the first year I have not gone. I work at Taco Bell and they were short on help that day, so I couldn't call off. I missed seeing my friends," senior Michelle Tasker said. Whether you went this year or not, you have probably gone before and have some of the same memories.

Abigail Getty serves food at a concession standfor her church. The Southern Garrett Marching Band marched in the parade again this year. Jared Custer, Robbie Kutchman, Doug Stephens, and Andrew Waligorski are taking their positions in the band very seriously. "The performance we did for the judges was a lot of fun. It was nice getting together with the former castof Fools. It was long overdue, and I'm glad that I got to help Ms. Avery," said senior Karen Gallagher. The color guard marches with grace and elegance while waiting for their cue to start twirling their flags. Maxie the Wonder Dog searches for leftovers at Our Town Theatre. Max is Ms. Avery's friendly pooch who is loved by all who meet her.

off the WALL

A few teachers at Southern take time out after school to work as coaches and improve school sports. Go Rams! Coach Stemple works with the basketball team. Coach Booth helps out the cross country team. Mr. Bender serves as the assistant coach for the basketball team. Mrs. Newton keeps the volleyball team on their toes. Coach Gregg heads up the football team.

The usual suspects: Teachers line the walls of the gymnasium to await the beginning of the success assembly.

Teachers at Southern High School spend many hours outside of the school to help students. Every Monday, teachers who are on committees stay an extra hour to improve our school. Some committees make decisions regarding school goals, while others strive to recognize successful students.

Many teachers spend time after school tutoring students or coaching sports. Others spend evenings grading student work and preparing lessons. But teachers are people, too! When the snow days roll around, they like to hit the slopes just like everybody else!

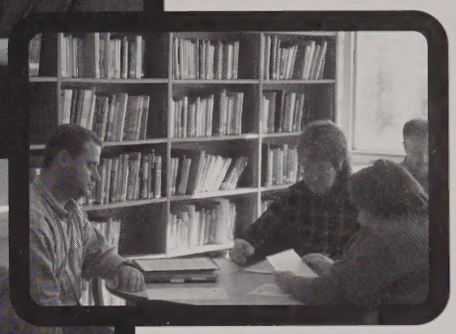
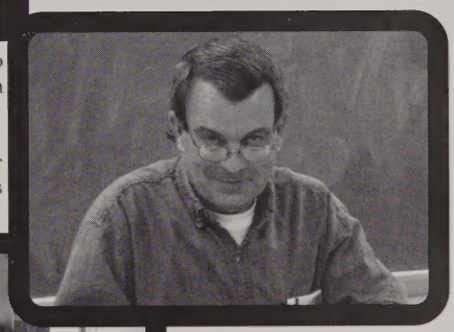
Mr. Woods, Ms. Marks, Mr. Plum, Mr. Shaffer, and Ms. Spiker are members of our School Improvement Team. This is just one of the committees that meets on Monday afternoons.

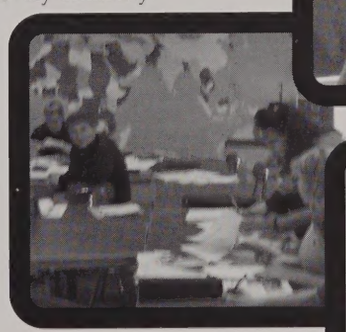


Mr. Cosner serves as a Technology Resource Teacher for the faculty of SHS. Teachers come to him with questions about everything from e-mail to photocopiers. He is pictured here with Rick Dolan, a media specialist for the Board of Education.



Mr. Freyman says he likes to ski when he gets a break from school.

Senora Harden is tutoring her Spanish students. She does this every Thursday.

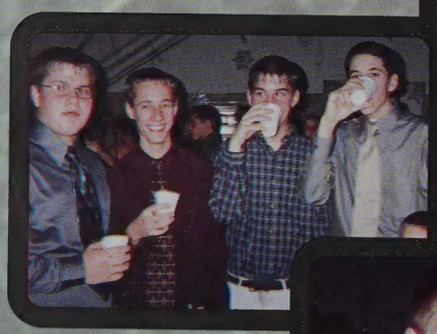


When asked what he does after school, Mr. Beeman said,"On warm days, I like to fish and on snow days I enjoy skiing."

Mr. Nock answers a question for Joey Tasker.

This group of freshmen look as if they are having a great time at the dance. Sophomore Stephanie DiSimone and senior Ricky Reams pose for a quick picture before going down on the dance floor for a good time.

Most people like to sit at the dances to either rest or talk to their friends. Sophomore Sabrina Scheffel and senior JB Murphy take a break from dancing to go and talk to their friends. Looks like JB danced just a little too much; he needed a massage from his date.



Thirsty guys? They must have been breaking it down out on the dance floor. Most students are thankful that food and beverages are provided at the dances. Dancing really makes a person thirsty, and sometimes hungry. Pictured are: Mark Kight, Andrew Feather, Travis Sines, Nathan Swartzentruber and crown bearer Kurt Gangler.

Senior Steven Skipper also pauses for a quick drink. Steven must really love his punch! Juniors Brian Crabtree and Erica Irwin take a break from dancing for a quick picture. They went to the dance together and had a great time.

Other than complaints about the music, the Winterball dance went rather smoothly without any faults. With the cancellation of the DJ at the last minute, we must give the new DJ some credit for his last minute replacement.

Megan Burner, senior, stated, "When I was elected Queen, I seriously thought somebody messed up the ballots. But then I thought to myself: Oh Megan, shut up...you're beautiful!" Chad Panther and Megan Burner were King and Queen of the dance.

Brandi Shaffer explained, "I had a good time at the dance. I thought the decorations looked nice too. I enjoyed hanging out with my friends and dancing with my boyfriend." Many students found the dance to be a great opportunity to let loose and spend time with their friends.

Behind the Scenes Staff Writer: Christy Sherwood

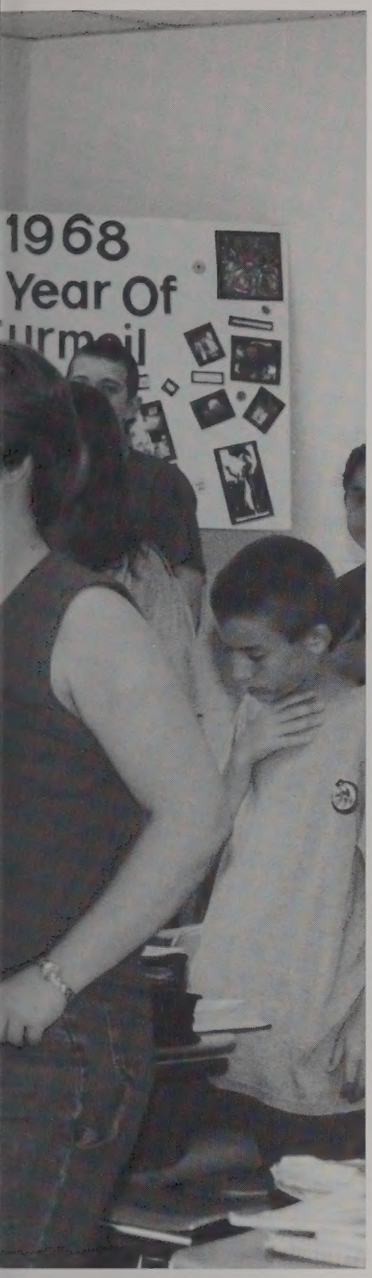
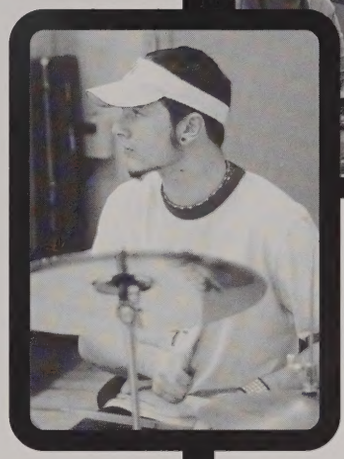
Guidance assistant Jessica Stiles is keeping herself busy until needed by the counselors. Filling his water bottle, Michael Schmidl smiles for the camera. Beth Sweitzer is working hard for Mrs. Smith during attendance aide period. Taking a break from typing is Miranda Savage in her fourth period keyboard class. Maria Dimick is filling out papers as an office assistant.



For Southern High students, each day begins with the Pledge of Allegiance. The day consists of four classes, a lunch shift, and maybe a bathroom visit or two. Some students complain that they have to live by a schedule, but others say it makes life easier. "I like having a schedule because then I know where I have to be and how much time I have to be there," Stephanie Wolf, senior, said.

Students' schedules didn't always hold. Lockdowns, fire drills, and field trips forced them to alter their plans at any given moment. And despite the fact that one school day appears, on the surface, to be just like the next, one never knows what surprises the next day might hold.

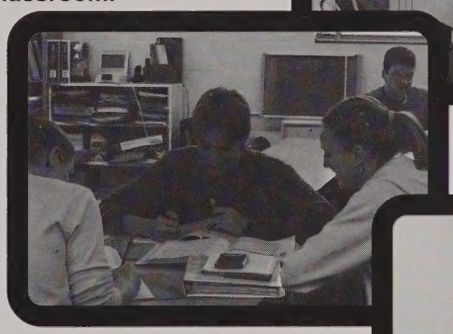
Freshmen Danielle Hickman, Ashley Stuck, and Emily Bowman are socializing during some free time in history class.

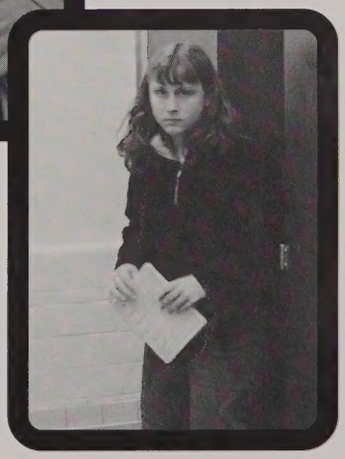


Erika Hummel and Wanda Steyer are trying desperately to look busy during Mrs. Wilson's class.

Andrew Hill plays the drums during many success assemblies.

Kim Thayer, Andrea Beachy, and Skyler Bolden wait patiently in the hall until given permission to enter Mr. Plaugher's classroom.



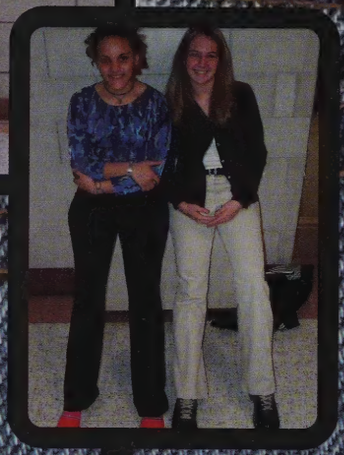


Jimmy Carpenter, Megan Bernard, and Erica Green are hard at work on their assignment in Mrs. Wilson's business class.

Even the most necessary errands require a notation in one's agenda book. Thankfully, the books were smaller this year than in years past.

"I choose my wardrobe by picking out clothes that I think no one else would have, Alexis Storey, sophomore, said. "The clothes have to look neat!"

What does the number 83 have to do with Mindy Bolyard? Absolutely nothing! Many of the students at Southern High wear numbers that have nothing to do with their lives.

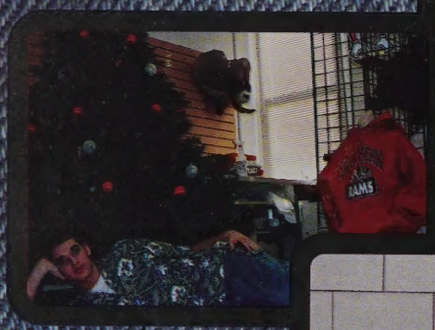


Frequent shopping is the key to keeping up with the trends, as LaWanda Harvey demonstrates. At Southern High School there are many different fashions.

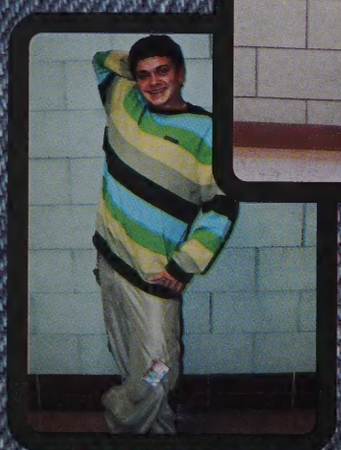
What do you consider your fashion to be? Jodi Kulak, senior, said, "The fashion style I choose is the 'prep' look or whatever feels comfortable."

There are so many different ways to show off your sense of style. Your shoes, hair, jewelry, and clothes are many of the things that make each student unique.

Jonathan Sypolt, junior, said, "Jewelry doesn't mean much to me, but my shoes are everything."



JB Murphy is sporting his Hawaiian style and blue jeans. When asked how JB chooses his wardrobe, he replied, "I just close my eyes and point a finger."



"Choosing your wardrobe is kind of like a one-size-fits-all baseball hat," Davey Wolf, senior, said. "All you have to do is pick up a pair of pants that already matches every shirt in your closet."

Afternoon Activities

After the Bell Rings

Staff Writer: Andy Swiger

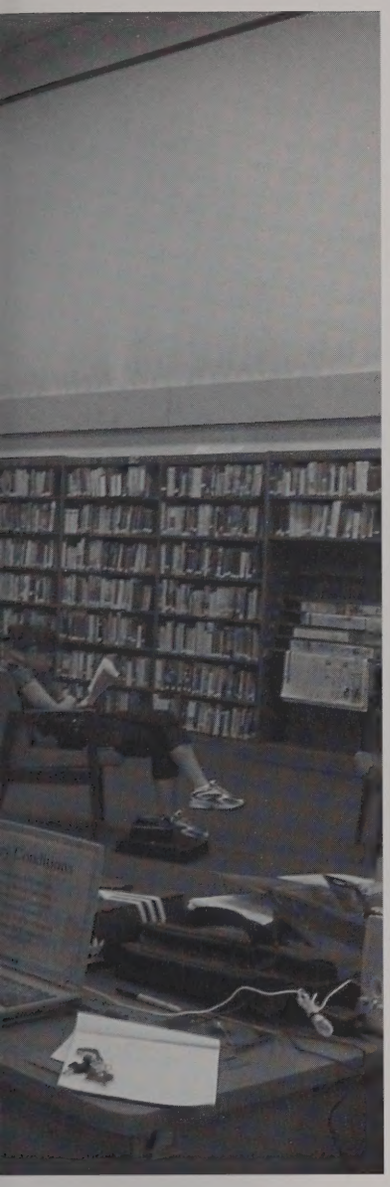
Friday night dances are activities for students to do after school and on the weekends. Shown above are students having fun at a Friday night dance. Gina Reeves commented: "Our school dances are great. They give students a chance to have fun, dance, and talk with friends."

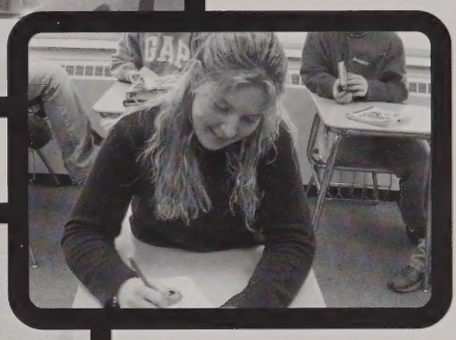


The school's library is staying open after school to study or work in groups. For a class project, the library's books and computers are also provided for students' use. SAT Preparation classes and extra help sessions are also offered in the library after school.

Students participating in sports do not get to take advantage of some after-school activities. They spend most of their time at practices or games and are left with just enough time to finish homework.

Other students who are not involved in extra-curricular activities either went to a part-time job or just went home and ate dinner.

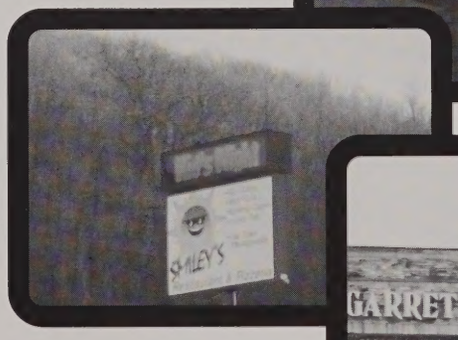
Mindy Welling, junior, says, "After school I get in my car and go to work at Nu-Way Interiors."



Jodi Kulak, senior, reports, "I like to dance my way to work at Little Caesar's after school."

Alissa Garland says her after school duties include Brenda's Body Shoppe and the school wrestling team.

After school, students wander all over the county. They go from downtown Oakland to the Lake. These places include Short Stop, Arby's Foodland, The movies, The Fort, Smiley's, and the Wisp.



Students are shown having fun and supporting their school football team. This is another activity students can attend and enjoy.

no regrets

Tattoos and piercings are becoming more and more popular as we learn that they are not dangerous when they are done properly. Mindy Bolyard, junior, says, "I really don't care for tattoos because I don't think they are very attractive."

Some people do think that they look neat. Stephanie Niner, junior, said, "Piercings look painful but very cool." No matter how you feel about tattoos and piercings -- if you ever decide to get one, make sure it is done by a professional.

Michael Hechmer has gone all out to be unique. He has his tongue, lip, eyebrow, and ears pierced. Along with these piercings he also has a tattoo of an alien on his chest.

Nathan Harvey shows some skin and a very detailed tattoo of a not-so- friendly tiger. Lindsey Perry, senior, allows a picture to be taken of the cute butterfly connected to her belly button. Sara Mcree, junior, shows the simple black rose on her ankle. Brandi Artice, senior, has a very beautiful tattoo of a fiery moon. Brandi also has the Chinese symbol for fire on her forearm.

Bonfires & Barbecues

What do you learn from falling into a fire? Partying will take a lifetime of wild nights to master.

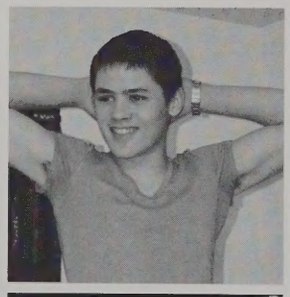
Staff Writer: Gina Reeves



Bob Burton, senior, like many others, takes partying very seriously. A group of pals pauses for a shot at a party. "Being together with all your friends is what makes your senior year worthwhile!" senior Kyle Conroy stated. Erin Oxford gets fancied up before going out to hit the town. "I love to make a lasting impression at every party I attend," Erin commented. Kristen Oxford stares blankly at the camera while enjoying herself at Diane's house party. She said "I danced and ate all night long with my friends." Chelsea Remley takes a break from the dance floor to grab a quick drink. Chelsea looks like she has had too much fun.

What is there to do on a Saturday night in Garrett County? Living here 17 years, the average G.C. teen might reply with the most common response: absolutely nothing. But in the midst of extreme boredom, kids will find stuff to do. Some just stay home and watch SNL. Others go out and hit the parties. During the fall and summertime, bonfires and camping were a big favorite, too.

Bubba Lemley stated that he likes to go to campouts at Lindsey Perry's with his friends. Favorite places to camp were in the woods, in Lindsey Perry's backyard, behind Shayla Collins' house, Swallow Falls State Park, and at various cabins and spots along The Lake. Megan Burner stated her favorite part of the party was sitting in the hot tub or swimming in the lake at night.

Other kids just stayed home and chilled. Junior A.J. Bender said he likes to hang out with Mr. and Mrs. Bender Saturday nights. "My folks are wild fun!" he added. Junior Bradley Dugan said he likes to sit around a fire or play card games at parties. Whether students camped out, played cards or ping pong, or just sat around a fire on weekends, each had their own kind of fun on those hot, wild Saturday nights.

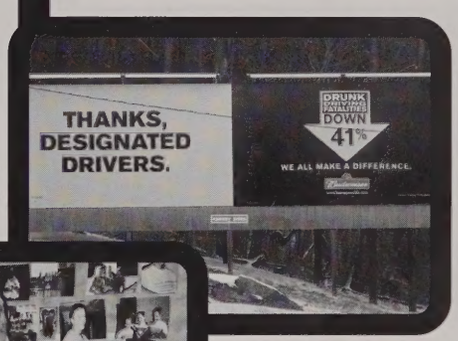
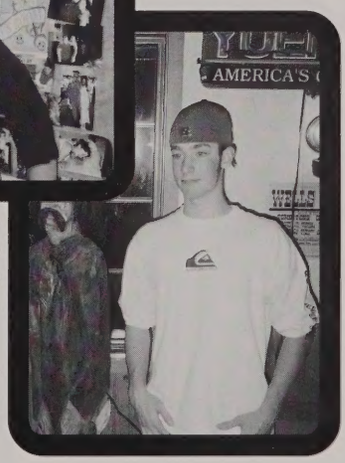
While dancing the night away, Jennifer Bosley takes time away from softball to chill on top of a table. Because of her busy schedule, Jennifer rarely got the opportunity to party on the weekends.



Bart Shaffer recalls "watching people try to roll through the fire at Shayla's house."



"The morning after a party is always rough because people always try to keep you up the night before," Bubba Lemley, senior, said.

where's the Party?

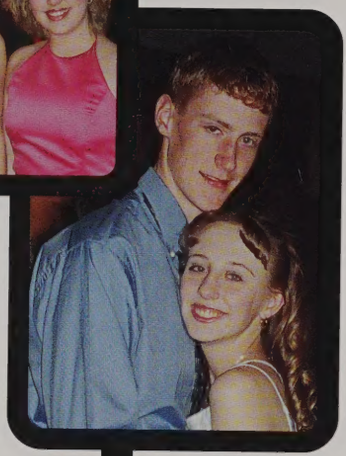
Falon Stutzman, Molly Thayer, and Kara Rush wait for a good song to dance.



Ted Bell and Katrina Iden pause from a slow dance to get their picture taken. They look very happy together dancing the night away. Katrina says the dance was very fun and she enjoyed it.

Erica Pratt, Amanda Pase, and Allison Richter are hanging out and waiting to be asked to dance.

Lauren Jolles, Sarah Anderson, Kristin McCasky, Vanessa Logan, Sam Cavalier, Laura Bonser, Bobby Bonser, Daniel Frederick, and Sarah Mullenax enjoyed themselves at Winter Homecoming.

Marla Watkins and Bryson Meyers were chosen as the Winter Homecoming king and queen. Members of the senior court included Laura Hollingsworth escorted by Dan Cathell, Kara Rush escorted by Ricky Reams, Molly Thayer escorted by Riff Browning, and Alison Ulino escorted by Chad Panther.

Erin Oxford, Alexis Story, Katie McGehee, and Holly Anderson have a good time together at the dance.

Senior Trip

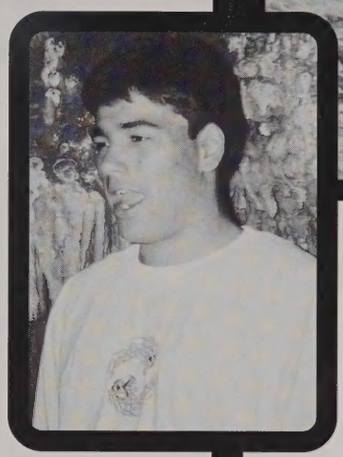
Marla Watkins and Mr. Powers get their groove on out on the dance floor aboard the Spirit of Norfolk. Christy Sherwood imitates a seagull for the camera. Andrew Harvey gets serenaded by a singer. Marla Watkins, Miranda Savage, and Craig Kelly are taking time out of their busy schedule to chill on the beach. Jodi Kulak and Darina Murphy enjoy a breakfast at the Ocean Front Diner. "We had a long wait for the boat, but it was worth it because we had a blast!" Craig Kelly said.

Senior Trip is a tradition that gives seniors one last field trip of fun. Mr. Powers and Mrs. Shipe arranged this year's trip. "I will never forget all the fun we had on the cruise," Marla Watkins said. Senior Trip allows students to become closer as a class just before they graduate.

The trip began with a fun-filled day at Busch Gardens. Saturday, seniors got to lounge on the beach and go shopping. That evening, seniors went on a dinner cruise aboard the Spirit of Norfolk. The trip came to an end on Sunday with a tour of Luray Caverns.

Although there were only twenty-one seniors on this year's trip, everyone who went had a wonderful and memorable time.

David Paugh, Craig Kelly, Mike Custer, and Andrew Harvey are having fun swimming in the ocean. Sitting on the park bench are Christy Hinebaugh, Brandie Nice, Amanda Savage, Brandy Long, and Miranda Savage waiting for the Spirit of Norfolk to arrive.

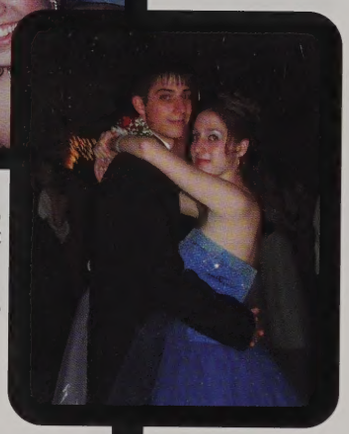


Like David Paugh, all the seniors were astonished by the wonderful formations found in Luray Caverns. "I was surprised at how cool the caverns were. I wasn't expecting them to be so interesting," David said.

Eating breakfast at the Atlantic Cafe, a hungry group of senior troopers pose for the camera. The studs of the senior trip pause for a picture on the top deck of the Spirit of Norfolk.

Jodi Kulak strikes a pose for her friends.

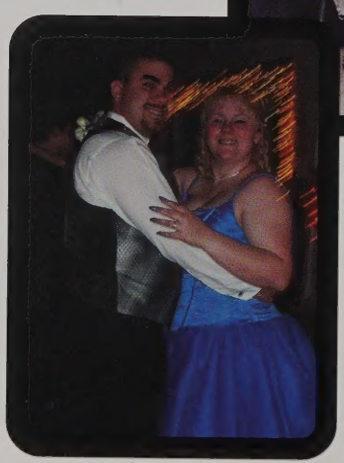
Seniors Matt and Megan Burner enjoy sharing this special time together.



Erica Irwin, Brittany Ashby, and Shayla Collins hang out and enjoy the prom.

Jenny Rentschler and Tyler Friend enjoy a slow dance.

Alexis Storey and Samantha Skeweris take a break from a long night of dancing.



Brad Dugan and Katie O'Brien take a time out to havetheir picture taken.

Nicole Ray and Chris Menker share their last dance as seniors.

Cowboys Cody Gilpin, Scott Rinker, Brett Lambert, Steve Teagarden, Andrew Harvey, and Josh Custer add a little charm to Prom night.

Under the direction of Mrs. Tasker and Mrs. Upperman, this year's Prom at the Elks Lodge was a huge success. Stars and moons, hand painted by Matt Burner, adorned the tables and added to the theme -- Midnight Dreams.

This year's Prom court included seniors Ashley Liller escorted by Chad Panther, Jennifer Bosley escorted by Skyler Bolden, Marla Watkins escorted by Brian Fike, and Molly Thayer escorted by Bryan Schwalm. Jerry Sweitzer and Jennifer Hickman were crowned Prom King and Queen.

The Prom was a special evening that marked the close of a great year.

Amanda and Miranda Savage celebrate the end of their senior year.

After-Prom

It's A Jungle Out There!

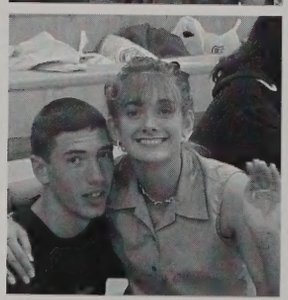
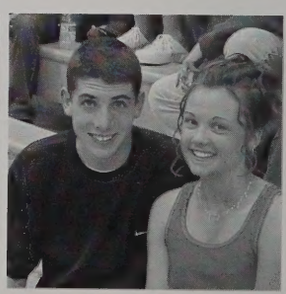
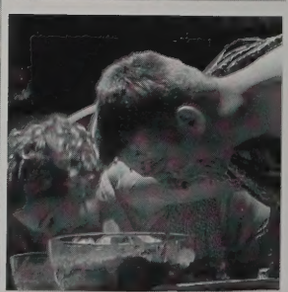
Staff Writer: Lori Fox







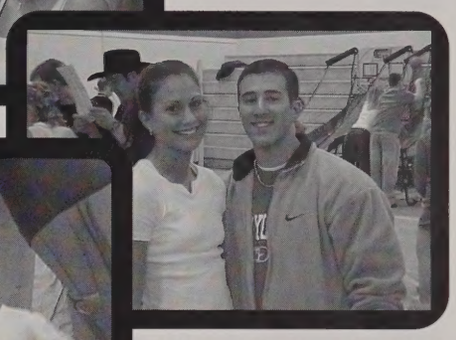
Gina Reeves, Jennifer Bosley, Brian Fike, and Brian Hinebaugh all participate in the survivor contest. Miranda Savage and her date Chris pose for the camera while taking a moment to rest. Samantha Skeweris smiles for the camera while waiting in line for the ram bucks. Chris Lantz and Brianna Byers rest from the exciting night at after prom. Megan Burner and JJ Bolyard compete in the final round of the survivor contest.

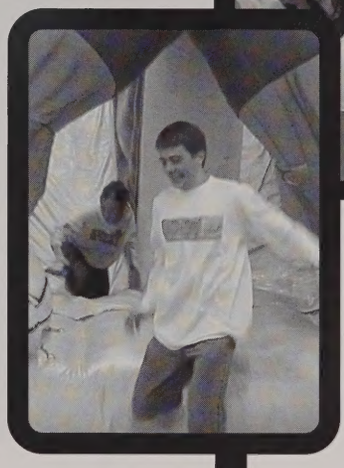
The jungle theme for After-Prom was suggested by the students and approved by the parents of juniors and seniors. Survivor games, music videos, and three on three basketball were just some of the activities offered.

After-Prom is a great place to hang out with friends after the dance. It was started in the early nineties by an anti-drug movement and the idea caught on nationwide. In 1992 the first after-prom was held at Southern. Since then, it has become a tradition.

Hundreds of hours are spent planning the event. After-Prom costs around $12,000 dollars, which comes from grants, local businesses, ticket sales, and donations. Each year the school expects around 300 to 400 students to attend, and this year was no different.

Andrea Coughlin and Kim Teter are watching the three-on-three game as they wait for the floor to open up.





Brittney Friend and Jeremy Frazee wait to go into the Iron Man Maze. Only two people could participate at a time.

Justin Gregory declares victory over underclassman Melissa Flanagan, proving that seniors really are number one.

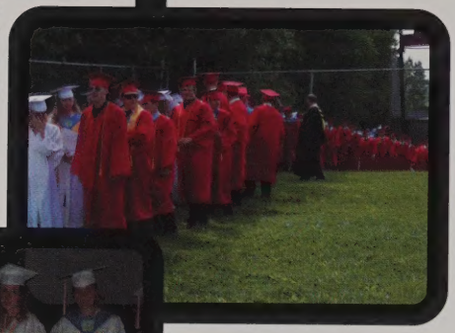
Adam Day looks like the Iron Man got the best of him!

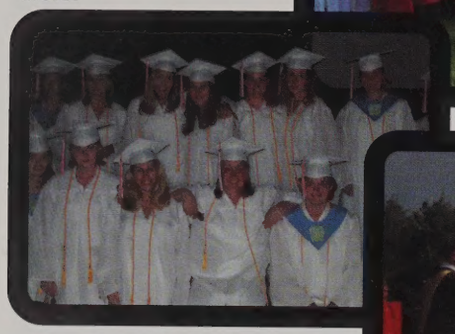
Skyler Bolden and his date enjoy themselves while playing a game at After- Prom .

Sheila Murphy and Jesse Howell pose for a moment while waiting in line for the Iron Man, one of the many activities available.

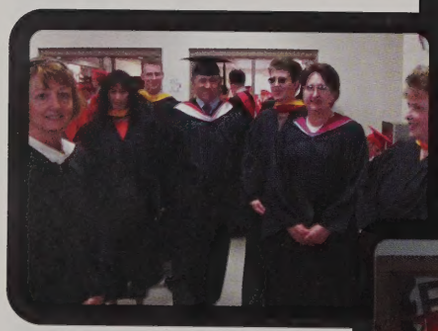
The members of the class of 2002 wait patiently for Mrs. Shipe to give them the signal to move onto the field.

Soon-to-be graduates pose for one last picture as seniors.



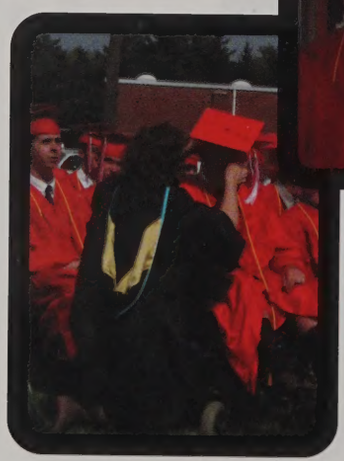


Brandie Artice makes her way across the stage. Brandie was the first member of the class to receive her diploma.



Faculty members escorting the graduating class wore robes representing their degrees.

Seniors Pat Murray, Chad Panther, Brad Palmer, and DR Parsons wait in the cafeteria for the processional to begin.



Mrs. Jane Gibson straightens Bryan Sharpless' cap before he receives his diploma.

A brisk wind and a blue sky created the perfect setting to send off the Class of 2002. The class recognized the Golden Graduates from the Class of 1953 with a standing ovation, completing the celebration of Southern's 50th anniversary.

Valedictorian Laura Hollingsworth and co-salutatorians Chase Ashby and Jennifer Bosley addressed the class. The day was filled with smiles and just a few tears as the graduates said good-bye to their alma mater.

Parents and friends lined the stands, armed with cameras. Laura Hollingsworth took time to thank her family in her speech, and Principal Tom Woods had the parents of the graduates stand and be recognized. Ed Clemons, senior class president, welcomed the class and passed his mantle to Kelly Wade. Kevin Goralski catches a few minutes sleep before the ceremony.

Man's Best Friend

The inside scoop on the furry friends who share our lives Staff Writer: Marla Watkins

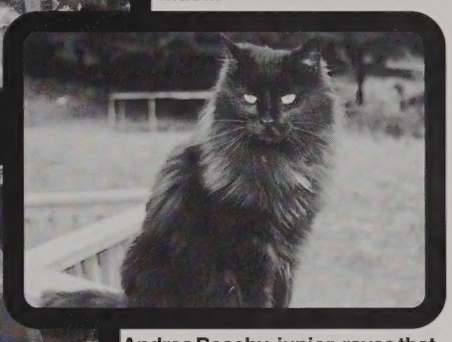
"My horse Apache means a lot to me," Caroline Britton, junior, says. "When I ride him I can get away from everything. I have owned him for a couple years and now he is like a part of my family. My horse takes me away from many of the things I don't like about the world." Also pictured is Caroline's dog Angel, whom she also loves. "I love my horse Tequila," says Beth Sweitzer, senior, says. "She's lots of fun to ride and she's always there when I need her the most." Ashlie Keener, freshman, is the proud owner of three chinchillas. "My chinchillas and I have all kinds of fun. Every Saturday we go to the park and talk about our week. I have Cherry, Chocolate, and Spicy. They are my family." Jodi Kulak, senior, is the owner of a dog named Killer. "Killer is the apple of my eye," she declares. "She means the world to me."

It is said that a man's best friend is his dog. "Most people have a dog or a cat as a pet," Krissy Ashby, freshman, said. "However, I like animals that you don't see everyday, like spiders and lizards."

A pet is an animal that you consider part of the family. When size and type don't matter, all that counts is the love you share with that pet. "Pets are accepting of people. It doesn't matter how your day went; your pet is always happy to see you." Mr. Czonka said.

Most people like dogs because they are loyal. A cat is a companion that is lazy and loves to be petted. Then some people own barnyard animals, such as ducks and horses, and are just thankful they're not someone's dinner or glue.

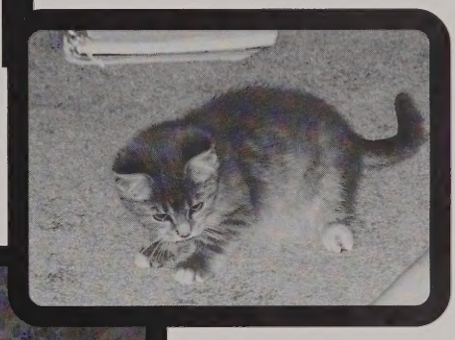
Andrea Coughlin senior, is spending time with her trusted dog Kitt. "My dog Kitt is like a sister to me. Five years ago an accident occured that took her leg. However, I still love her very much."



Andrea Beachy, junior, raves that her pet cat Morsel is her best friend. She especially likes taking Morsel to the vet for his regular check-ups.

Christie Hamilton, junior, says that she and her dog Sammee are "like two peas in a pod. Everywhere I go he follows, he's so cute, I could just hug him all day."

"This is my cute cat Hershey," Cassie Gregory, junior, said. "All of our cats are named after candy and candy bars and our dogs have Bible names. My cat isn't really friendly because she is an outside cat, but I still love her."



Debbie Woods, our principal's wife, poses with the family dog.

Ashley Keeys, senior, says of her dog Karli-Simone: "We have shared so many great memories, like the first day I got her. Everyday since we have been inseparable. She is a great friend and is always there for me."

You Are Here

In an attempt to distract the photographer, Mike Dewitt stretches his hand in front of his friends Jon Collins, Kim Thayer, and Stephanie Smith.

During one of the many assemblies this year, students shove their way into the picture.

Seniors Megan Burner and Gina Reeves show their school spirit by participating in the school's 50th anniversary celebration. "Dress up week was by far my favorite experience from my senior year," Gina said.

The many changes during this school year had little impact on the individuality of those who attend SHS. The faces of new freshmen, administrators, and staff changed the look of Southern. The year was defined by both continuity and change and looked a little different because you were there.

Staff Writers: Lindsey Perry and Jenny Hickman

April Collins: "I like to hang out at the bowling alley because it is a good place to play pool and listen to music."

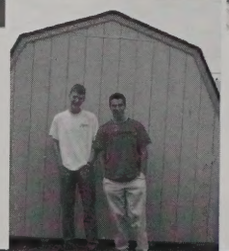
Robert Barnard: "In my spare time, I like to ride four-wheelers with my cousin Brandon. My favorite place to ride is in Swanton."

Kara Rush: "I like to go to the mall with my friends. I hardly ever buy anything, but it is fun to socialize and window shop for the latest fashion tips."



Ted Bell: "I like to hang out at Wal-Mart because they have everything. When I am finished doing that, I like to hang out in the woods and ride four-wheelers till dusk."

Raven Cook: "Wal-Mart is the place I go to for fun because that is where my friends work. If I am not doing that, I am at a friend's house."

Dear 50th Anniversary Graduates,

Congratulations! You have accomplished the first great academic goal of your life; you are a high school graduate. The opportunities of the world are now within your grasp. Thirteen years of diligence, dedication, perseverance, and hard work have enabled you to prepare for the next phase of your life. The years have sometimes seemed long, but in retrospect it was only yesterday.

It has been a privilege to serve as your principal during this exceptional year. As the 50th Anniversary Graduates, you have assured yourself a special place in the history of Southern Garrett High School. Together we have witnessed some of the world's most remembered moments. Each of us dealt with the unbearable sadness of September 11th and tried to rationalize why the world seemed to be such a volatile place of hatred. We watched as our Armed Forces tried to make the world safe from terrorism during the campaign in Afghanistan. The daily news held our focus on the Middle East and tugged at our hearts to seek solutions to a conflict that seemed to have no end.

The memories of tragedy are but a small remembrance when one reflects on the greatness of this graduating class. You have brought to our school memories of leadership, kindness, caring, intellect, and love. This senior class has led by example. Each of you has left a lasting mark of example for others to admire and emulate. You have accepted the rigors of the "world's greatest teachers" and proved your merit in every challenge placed in your path. The expectations have been great, but the results have been greater.

No school can boast of a better group of seniors than Southern Garrett High School. You are indeed the "best"! You have been prepared by your parents, teachers, counselors, and peers to do great things in life. When our school's history is rewritten fifty years from now, your place among the best will once again be echoed. Continue to accept the challenge of leadership and forever remember your years at Southern. We will forever remember you!

Sincerely,

Tom Woods

TOP 5 BENEFITS OF BEING A SENIOR!

1. GRADUATION
The fact that in less than 180 days, you get to graduate.

2. R-E-S-P-E-C-T
You get more respect from your teachers, the administration, and underclassmen.

3. CLASS
You get to take easy classes that end before the semester is over.

4. SKIPPING
Three simple words: SENIOR SKIP DAYS!

5. GETTING OLDER
Most seniors turn 18 sometime during the school year. (That means certain things become legal for you to do.)

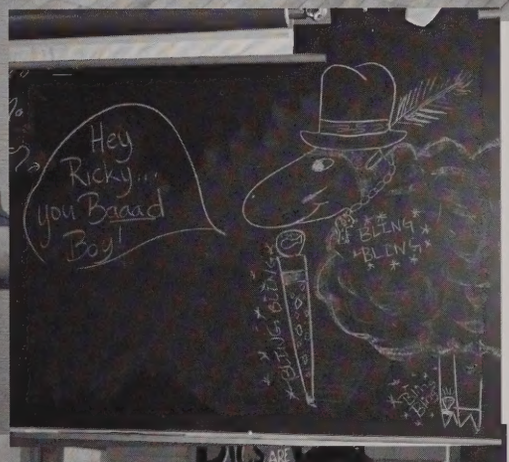
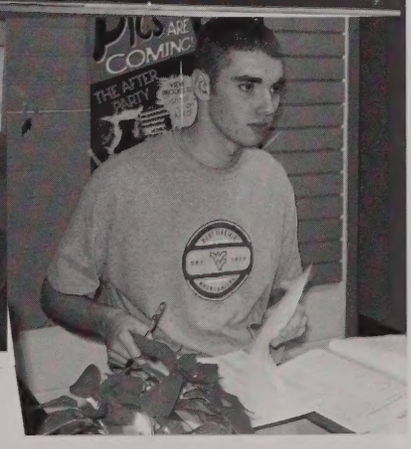
Superwoman (a.k.a. Gina Reeves) warms up before weight training class. This was only one of many embarassing exercises that students had to undergo in order to become physically fit.

Tobi Stoner and Bryson Meyers take a moment out of their busy lives to pose for a picture in their safety goggles.



A privilege given to certain seniors is an AP Resource class. During this unnamed student's AP class, a wonderful piece of artwork was created in Mr. Biggs' classroom for all students to enjoy.

Office Assistant is a class that few privileged students are allowed to have. "I don't get a grade for being an aide," Bryan Schwalm, senior, said, "but it is relaxing to not have to worry about homework, midterms, or agenda book notations."



While escaping from class, JB Murphy stops by the school store to purchase some candy. Some seniors, like JB, were able to run the school store register and take care of other marketing affairs for Mrs. Lisa Bender.

The cat is out of the bag: the teachers party as soon as all the students have gone for the year! They spent the last school day of 2002 cleaning out rooms and feasting!

Mr. Powers was given a special award on the last day of school. He received the Phoenix award. The Phoenix is a legendary bird that perished in fire and then rose from the ashes.

Outstanding People

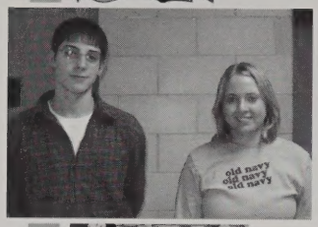
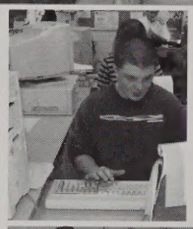
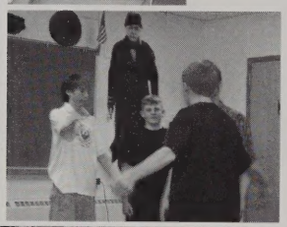
Staff Writer: Jodi Kulak

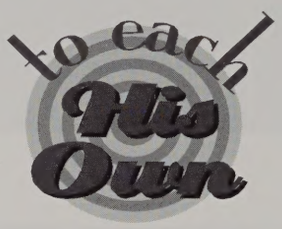






Many students throughout Southern High School have hidden talents. Some express these talents by joining a group with common interests, such as theatre, chorus, band, auto mechanics, and carpentry.

Take time to appreciate the talents of those around you that often go unnoticed.



Shana Sines, Guy Joseph and Amanda Savage, all seniors, use their outstanding voices to serenade not only the chorus class but also audiences at public shows.

Hidden Talents

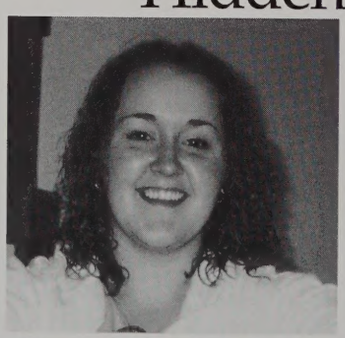
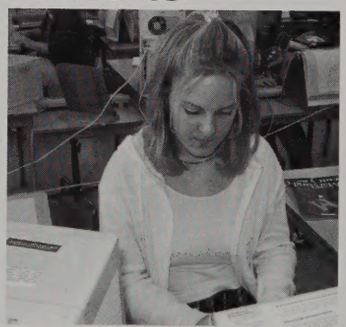
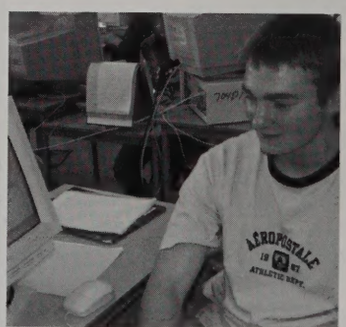
Brandie Nice holds her own against the guys in the auto shop.



"I love working with people. I am a beautician in training."
-- April Ringer



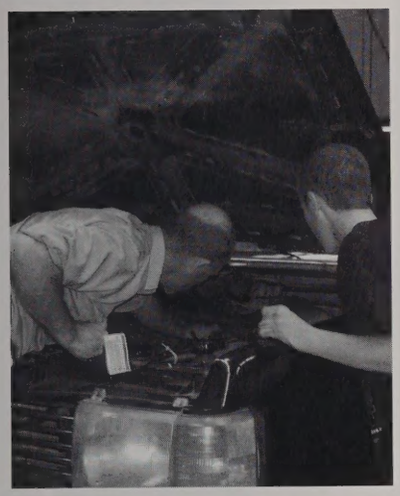
"I took keyboarding because I am a slow typist and this class will help me get faster."
-- Nikki DeWitt

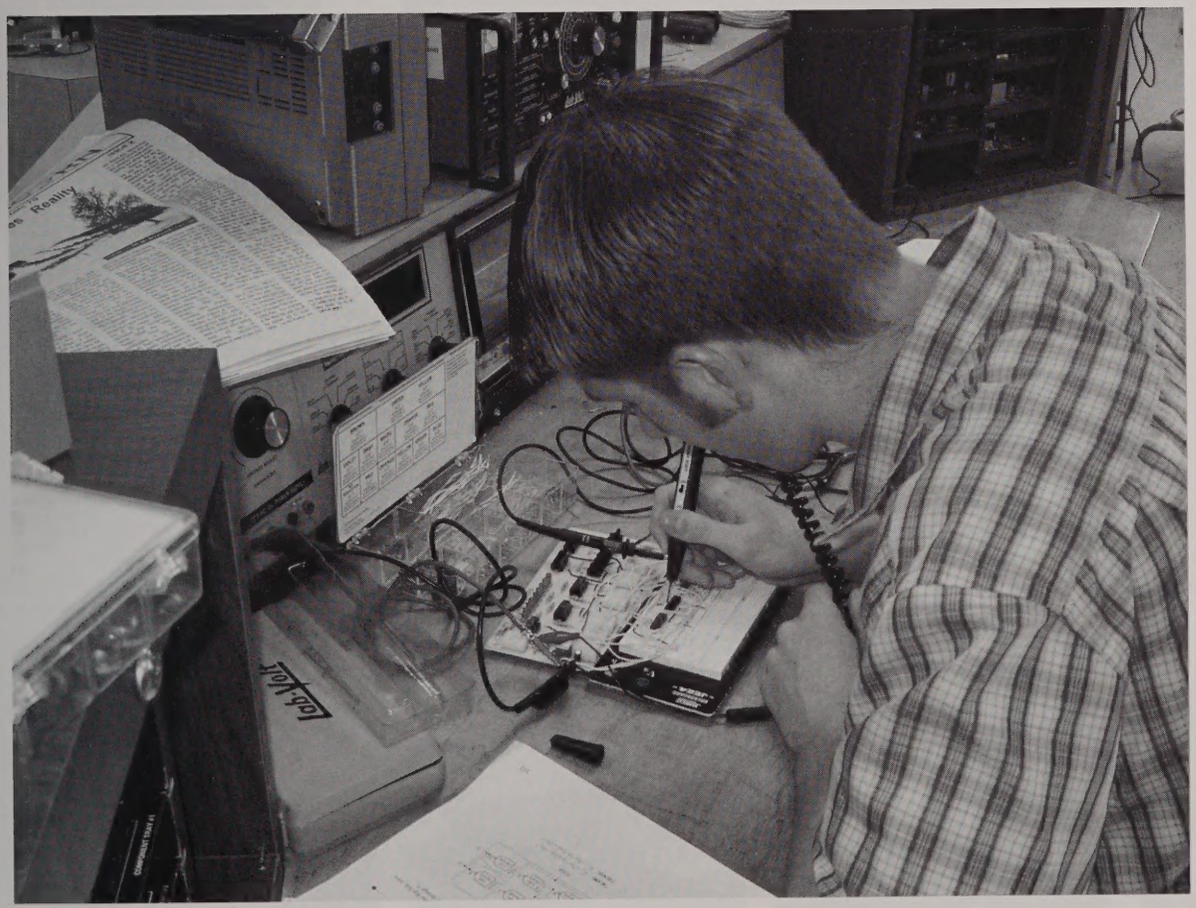


"Computers are a big part of our world today, so I am learning as much as I can about them."
-- J.J. Bolyard

Senior Suzanne Gilbert shows her dancing abilities in Ms. Avery's fourth period class. Suzanne has participated in many theatrical shows, including the popular show Fools.

Using his mechanical skills, senior Dan Cathell fixes the motor in his Ford truck during Mr. Powers' fourth period mechanics class.

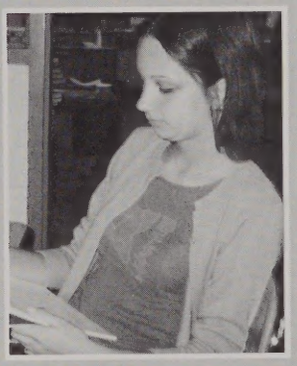




Jonathan Neville demonstrates his electrician skills in Mr. Cosner's electronics class. This will be his third year in this class.

"I've played the clarinet since fourth grade. I didn't play last year because I didn't have room in my schedule."

-- Sheila Murphy



"Art lets me express myself and develop my creativity."

-Sarah McWilliams

"Art is and always will be an important part of my life."

-- Matt Burner

no wrong way to learn

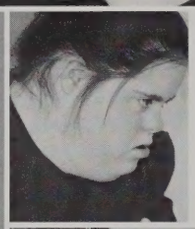
Staff Writer: Christie Hamilton

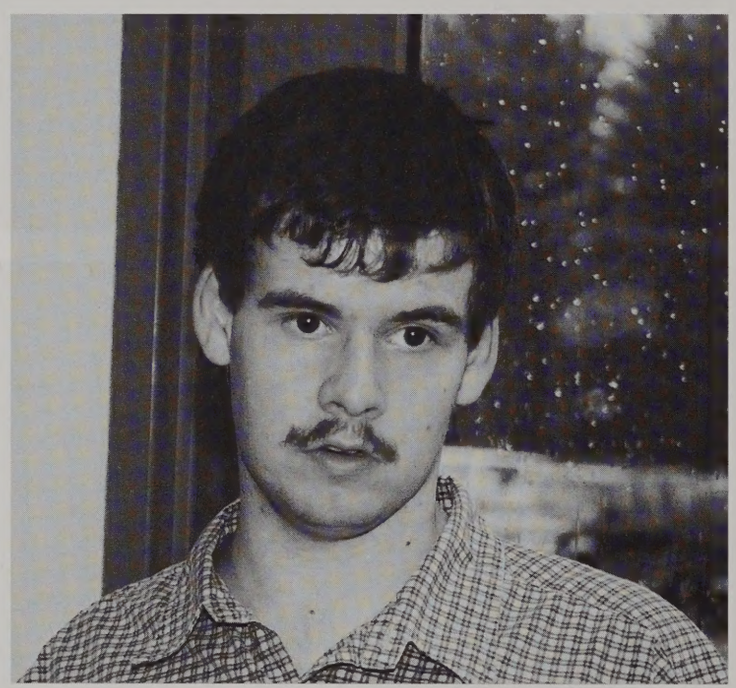


I can detect the scent of cookies the second I pass the office. I can hear the faint beat of music as I pass Ms. Ringler's room. A few more steps, and I am standing there, right in front of the door to the room that produces such appeals to my senses.

I walk in and see Mrs. Friend and Mrs. Thomas, (fondly labeled Miss Deb and Miss Irene by their students) up to their elbows in cookie dough, flanked on all sides by the shining faces of their students.

Every day for a week, the kids mixed, blended, buttered, and baked so they would have a bag full of cookies to take home to their families for Christmas.

Whether it be Thanksgiving or Christmas, the students busy themselves by delivering newspapers in the morning and cooking in the afternoon. Every day brings something new and interesting to do. In the words of Miss Deb, "no two days are the same."



BJ waits anxiously for the cookies to be done. BJ enjoyed the bag of cookies that he shared with his family on Christmas.

meet the girls

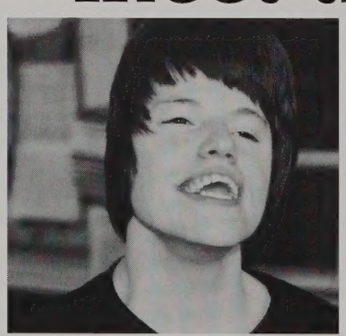
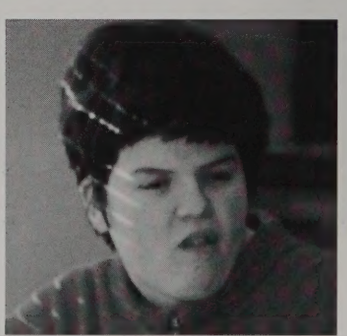
Deb Petersheim loves to do her paper route and rock in the rocking chair.



Mel Smith loves Little Debbie snack cakes and dancing.

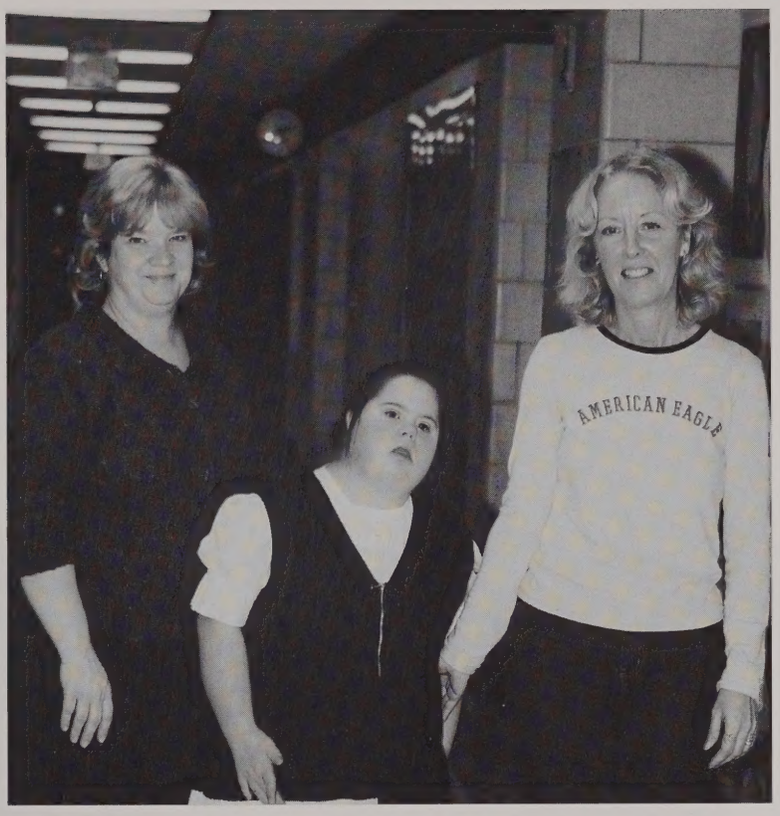
Jess Welch loves the color blue and working puzzles.



Tracey Wolfe loves to look at magazines and watch TV.

Miss Irene and Miss Deb take "Debs" for a walk. Debs likes walks almost as much as her rocking chair, but not quite.

Mel heads to the office to mail a letter for Miss Deb. Mel is a well-known delivery girl.



Miss Irene, Tracey Wolfe, BJ Lyons, "Debs" Petersheim, Jessica Welch, and Mrs. Henline pause for a group shot.

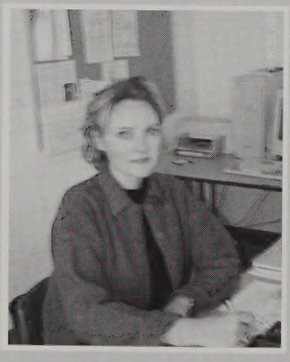
Mr. Plum is responsible for getting the Best Buddies program underway.

Miss Irene Thomas always keeps a watchful eye over her students.

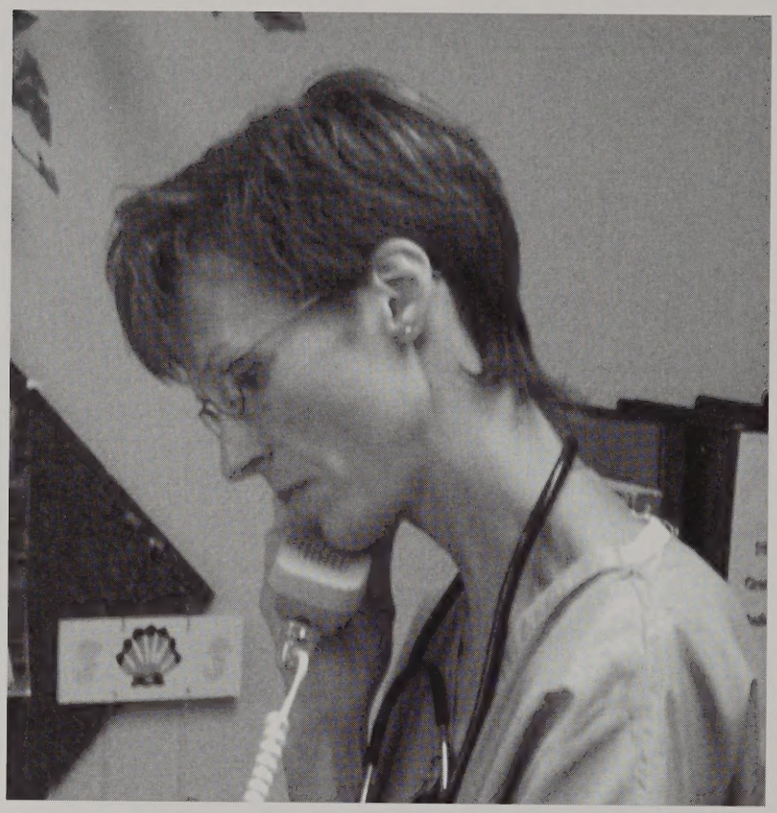
Miss Deb Friend keeps track of the students as they work in the kitchen.

Mrs. Proudfoot works in the guidance office trying to keep everything up to date.

Mr. Bowman is the new math teacher at Southern. He takes time out for a quick picture.

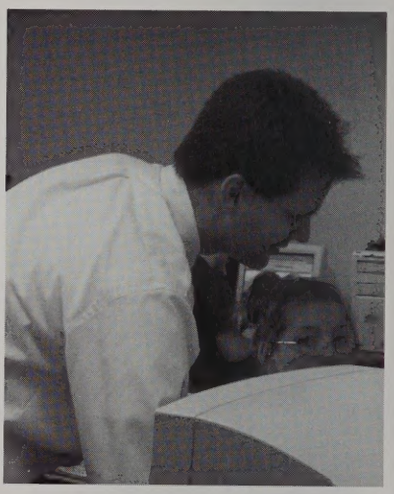


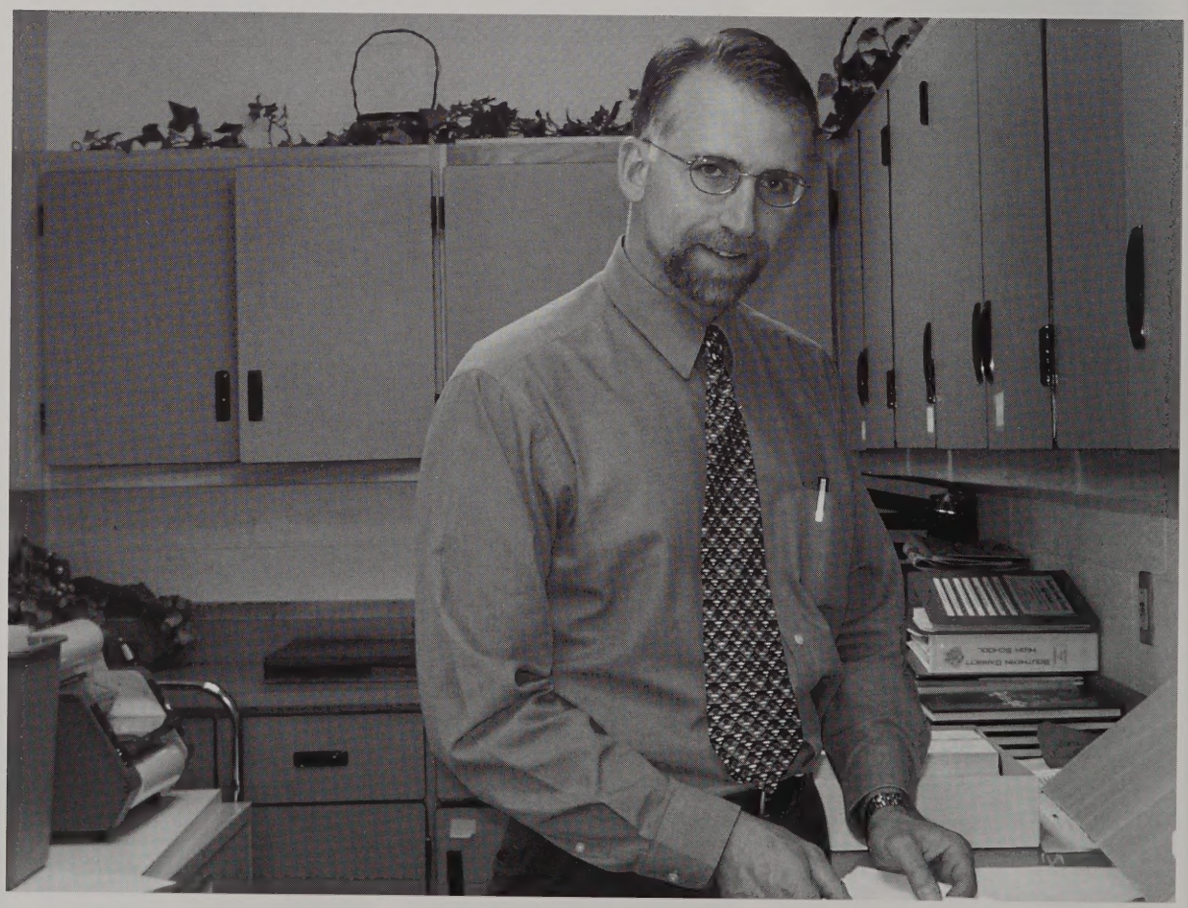
Mrs. Henline works with the special education classes. She poses for a picture between classes.



Mrs. Slaubaugh is working hard to improve the school. She is dressed like a doctor for Halloween! Mrs. Slaubaugh always participates in spirit dress-up days.

Even though Mr. Coffman is always busy, he finds time to help everyone. Mr. Coffman worked long hours this summer getting the library ready for the opening of school. It paid off. The library looks great!





Mr. Maddy is constantly busy in the office making sure our school runs smoothly.

The New Staff

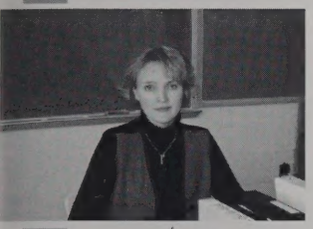
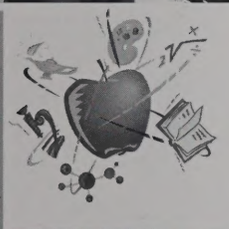
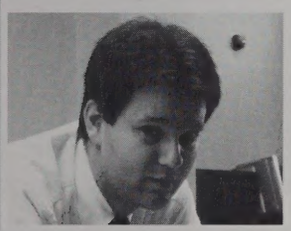
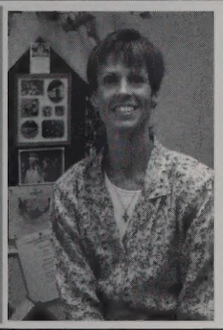
Staff Writer: Alisa Davis









There are many new teachers who came to Southern High this year. Mrs. White is the new yearbook advisor and she also teaches World History and English. "She is a big help with all the class work," Ellen Paugh, junior, said.

Mr. Coffman is the new librarian this year. He really enjoys his job and makes the library a better place. "Mr. Coffman is very nice and helps anyone who asks," Amber Eastman, junior, said.

Mrs. Diaz and Mrs. Henline came to SHS to be special education teachers. Mr. Bowman is the new math teacher, and Mr. Maddy is our new assistant principal. Additionally, Mrs. Proudfoot has joined the counseling staff.

Mrs. Slaubaugh took Mrs. Liller's place in the main office. She has a difficult position with many responsibilities. Mrs. Slaubaugh is well organized, so she does a very good job at keeping the staff and students on their toes.

"I think Mrs. White is a very cool teacher, Aaron Wells said. "I suggest that everyone takes yearbook."

Students' Thoughts

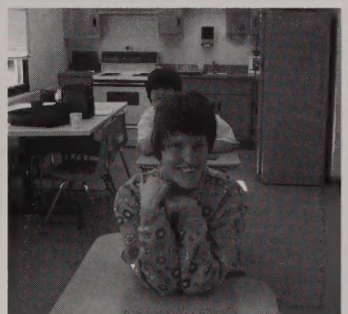
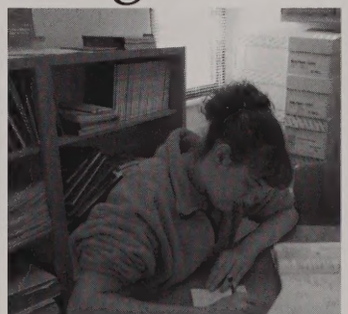
"I've never talked to Mr. Maddy before and I'm glad I haven't yet."
-- Billy Schmidl



Melanie Smith likes to play bells with Mrs. Henline.



"Mrs. Proudfoot brings a smile to the guidance office."
-- Lawanda Harvey

"Mr. Bowman's class is hard!"
-- Nora Nichols

Students With Jobs

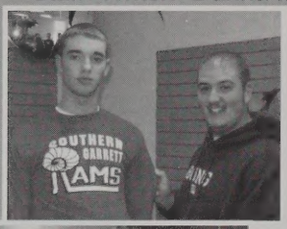
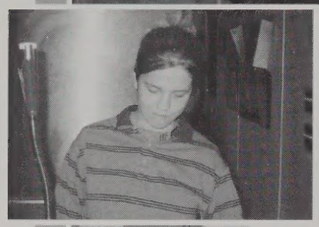
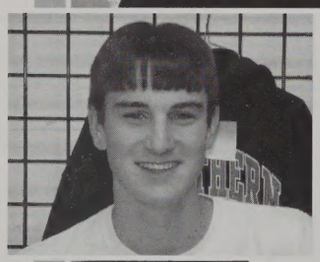
Staff Writer: Darina Murphy







Many students who attend Southern High School have after-school jobs. They have these jobs to pay for vehicles or just to have money on the side. Stephanie Wolf, senior, says, "I just have my job at Little Caesars so I can pay for my car and make my cell phone payments."

Other students have a job so they can pay for miscellaneous things they want. "When I want CDs and clothes, I can pay for them myself since I have my job at Taco Bell," Ashley Keeys, senior, says. Part time jobs are an easy way for students to earn extra money while attending high school.

Stephanie Wolf is mixing sauce for pizzas at the local Little Caesars.

Job Talk

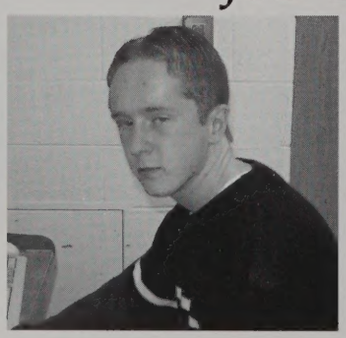
"I operate the go-carts and run the arcade at Smiley's Pizzaria. I only have it so I can pay for my car."
-- Billy Reams



"I work at Josie's Family Restaurant because I have to pay for gas and car insurance."

Sneaking In Late

Many Southern High School students have sneaked into their homes and classes late. However, some have never tried it , such as April Ringer, senior, who says, "I have never sneaked out of my house because I am scared of getting caught by my strict parents."

But others were proud to admit the many times they have disobeyed their parents. "I have sneaked out of my house many times because my parents are strict and won't let me go out with my friends," says senior Nikki Whitacre.

Some found it necessary to sneak into classes as well. "I'm always late for first period," Holli Harris, senior, said. "I try to come up with creative excuses so I won't be counted tardy. Sometimes I sneak in without my teacher seeing me."

Harris added that maybe students wouldn't try so hard to sneak in late if the punishment weren't so harsh. "I wouldn't lie or worry so much if the teachers were more lenient and would let a few minutes slide once in a while," Stephanie Wolf, senior, said.

Joe Williams is sneaking into the classroom late, trying not to get caught.

" I am glad I was in the cast of Ms. Avery's last school play," stated Christie Hamilton, junior. "It was an honor. I will always remember it."

"I appreciated the opportunity to learn how to vault onto a piano gracefully in two seconds flat," said Abigail Getty, junior.

Alison Ulino, one of the talented stage managers said, " I enjoyed working with such an original group of people."

Katrina Iden (Barbara) said, "I've never had so much fun, especially since I got to be so ditzy." Fun was definitely a factor in everyone's role. John Armstrong (Kent) stated, "I enjoyed being the stud of the play."

The cast had a few odd reasons why they enjoyed their character so much. Katie Richter (Van Pelt) said, "I loved getting to work with so many great people. Plus, it was fun flipping out about everything."

Actions speak louder than words. Maybe it's because of the massive amount of time in rehearsal or the mid-day serenades at Pizza-Hut, but this group became a family. "And as for the cast, I love you. . . I love you all!"exclaimedAbigail Getty, junior.

a brand new family

Staff Writer: Karen Gallagher

Put together eleven insane cast members, three technical crew members, two saucy stage managers, and one totally awesome director, and what do you have? The ever hard working team of this year's school play entitled "In 25 Words- Or Death."

A lot of hard work went into the success of the play. But despite the late night rehearsals and countless injuries accumulated through set construction, it was well worth it. These students had the opportunity to learn much about the world of the theatre. While the crew members learned the technical aspects of drama, the cast had the "once-in-a-lifetime" opportunity to discover their inner celebrity.

"I liked being in the play because it revealed to me my inner Donny Osmond," stated Ben Peraccio (Carl). Suzanne Gilbert (Magda) said," The villains were the coolest. I got to show my mean, nasty side! Oh yeah, I made some new friends too. Very few villans can make such great friends, but hey! That's what theatre is all about."

Over the months the cast and crew became like a family, with Ms. Avery as the family protector. It is well known that this is Ms.Avery's last year teaching, so on behalf of all of the students she has ever taught, this page is dedicated to her.

" We will miss you!"

After each performance, Ms. Avery would line up the cast and crew on the stage and she would have them do a biography of themselves for the audience. On this occasion, however, the cast and crew did a presentation entitled "Why we love Ms. Avery -- In 25 Words or Less." She was presented with flowers and stories of how she has changed our lives. A lot of tears were shed and a lot of beans were spilled that day.

rave reviews

"I loved the play. It gave me some great ideas on how to create the perfect jewel heist!" said Marla Watkins, senior.

"The actors did a magnificent job!" said Wesley Thomas, junior.

"The play was very humorous. I especially liked the character of Nicholas," Tommy Dunbar, sophomore, said.

" The cast was great and Ms. Avery did a wonderful job of directing ," said Julia Bosley, freshman.

couples

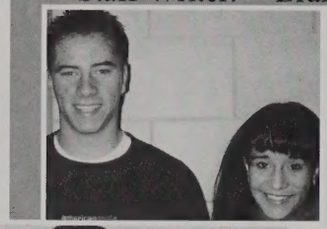
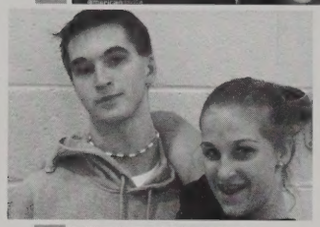
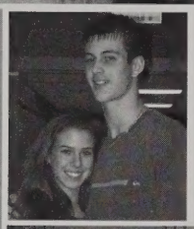
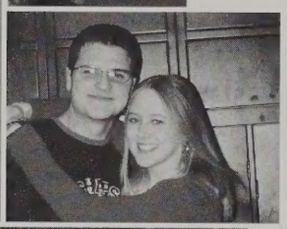
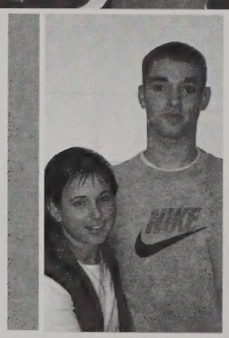
Staff Writer: Brandi Shaffer











When you look around the halls of Southern High, you can easily identify the couples. Couples show their affection by holding hands, locking arms, by placing an arm gently around the waist of their significant other, or by stealing affectionate glances at their current loved one. The rules only permit so much affection, but you can sometimes catch couples pushing the rules. Of course, they don't bend the rule too far; they stop at an innocent peck on the cheek or lips.

High school love isn't always meant to be and doesn't last very long because as we grow, we constantly change our minds, tastes, and moods. One day a couple may appear to be happy and in love, but the next day they have moved on with their lives and started exploring the single life again.Some couples have open arguments where some serious name-calling takes place, but by the next day they are over it, happy and in love again.

There are many of good things and bad things in relationships. Even though the bad outweighs the good every once in a while, relationships among our peers will never disappear. Couple is a common word that will be around for a long time. So this leads to the question, "Is it truly better to have loved and lost, than never to have loved at all?"

Even though the two teams had a pretty upseting season, they still had high hopes throughout the year. "We gained a lot of experience this season," Coach Jim Bosley said. The girls cross country team begins in late August. They practice Monday through Friday from 3:30 to 5:30 pm. Their practices and meets are held at Broadford Park. Melissa Durst was the team captain and the number one runner. Natalie Dominick was the second place runner on the team. Due to illness, these girls had a rough season; however, illness didn't stop Melissa Durst from accepting her third year championship. The health of the top runners made regionals tough and kept the girls from going to states.

Coach Louie Newcomb promoted team unity and cared for each girl as an individual.

"Mr. Newcomb is a great coach. You could tell he cared for our needs," said Melissa Durst.

Mr. Booth is the boys cross country coach, but is also very supportive of the girls. He was always cheering them on. Coach Booth holds a post-season party called "The Gathering" at his home for both boys and girls teams. "The Gathering was a lot of fun," Lisa Wade commented. "It lets us know we are a team."

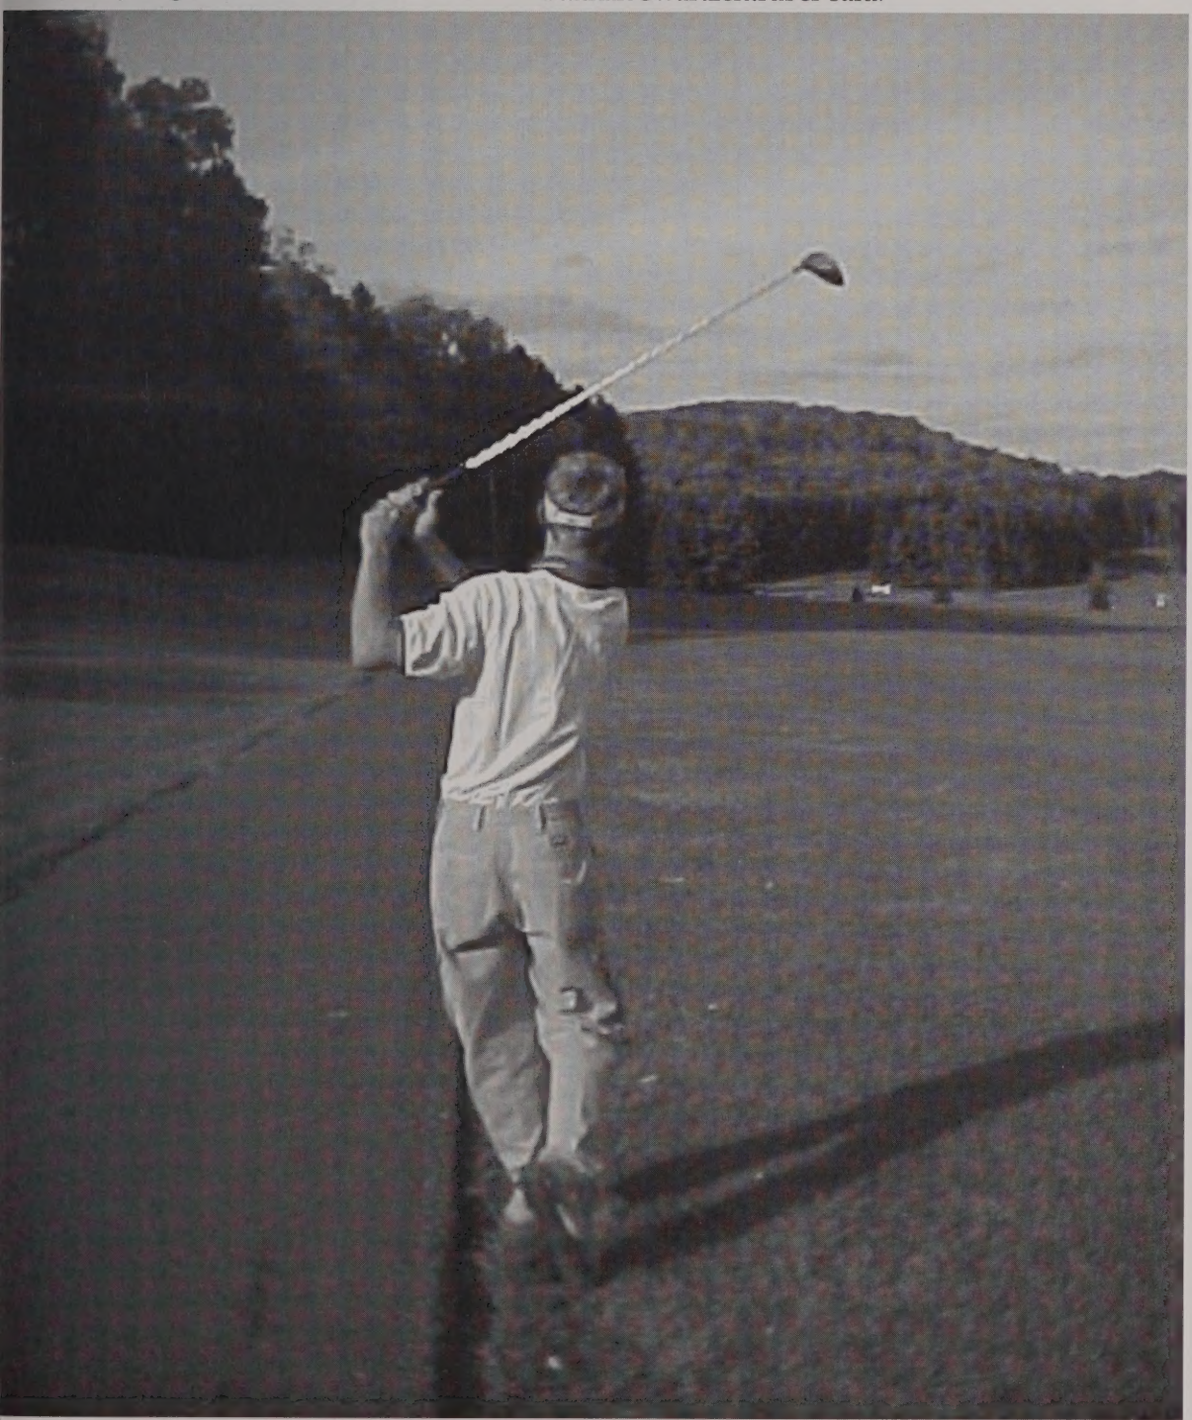
Golf is not a highly recognized sport at Southern High, but for the players it provides good memories and good times. There are never real crowds of friends and classmates to cheer the team on, but the parents of the players are great supporters. Most of the players remember the good times they had hitting golf balls at geese and chasing them in golf carts. However, they also remember never hitting one of them. The team enjoyed frequently missing school days for competitions. "The bus rides were so fun," Travis Friend said. "We threw balls out the windows and just goofed off. It was the best."

The golf team had a pretty good year, in spite of all the "goofing off." They made it to states for the first time in twenty years. One of the most memorable rounds was against Northern. The Rams were defeated by one point, but when the two teams met again, Southern's golfers beat them by about 32 points. The golf team owes their successful year to Coach Jeff Friend. He encouraged and supported every member of the team. When a golfer had an off day, he was there to help him with his game. "We had a great year, no matter how good or bad we did," Nathan Swartzentruber said.



Andrew Feather makes a long stroke to hit the ball as far as he can. Andrew, although only a junior, was a tremendous assett to the golf team in 2001.

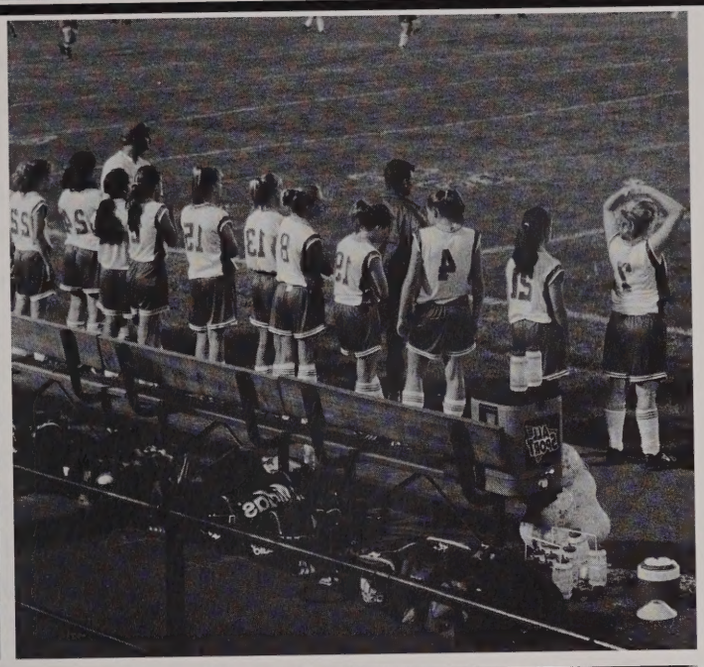
"One word that describes our team is awesome," Kristen Oxford, junior, said. "This word comes to mind because we are -- well -- awesome." Oxford, one of the key stoppers on the girls soccer team, sums it up nicely. This year the Lady Rams took home the WMIL championship and the area championship for the second year in a row. Their record ended at 13-2-1 when they lost to Smithsburg for the 1A West Region Championship with a final score of 4-2.

The ladies also broke the school record for the most victories in a season. Coach Petrella and Assistant Coach Bonser coached the Rams to a winning season. Sabrina Scheffel was the top scorer for the Rams with 14 goals and Brittany Naylor came in a close second with 13 goals.

"One of the things I've learned is that sometimes you have to lose," Miriam Sincell, senior, said. "It reminds you to give your all in every game." Sincell is just one of the seven seniors who will graduate this year. They are the "last of the first" players that played on the inaugural team. "They built the program," Coach Ron Petrella said. "They helped lay the groundwork for other girls coming through the recreational league."

Although the ladies accomplished so much, they fell short of their dream, which was to go to "the big show," as Coach Petrella would put it. The memories will live on though. "We are not just teammates," Alasha Rush, sophomore, said. "We are friends, which results in a great team and a wonderful season!" And that's just what it was!

Shown here are the "last of the first" players on the Southern Rams Soccer Team: Gina Reeves (front), Alison Ulino, Miriam Sincell, Laura Hollingsworth, Coach Ron Petrella, Jennifer Hickman, Megan Burner, and Becky Martin. They have played together since they were in seventh grade and their legacy will continue to live on throughout the years.

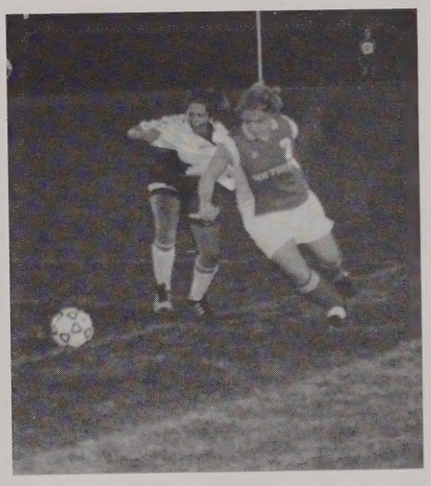


Becky Martin stretches high to stop the ball from advancing down the field. Out of the goal this year, Martin traveled to various places. Her main position was mid-field where she achieved five goals.

The South Hagerstown goalie received a yellow card for misconduct in one of the play-off games for the season. Gina Reeves tries desperately to hide her laugh.

Gina played left forward for the Rams and was known for her aggressive style of play. However, Coach Ron Petrella seems to lighten her mood on one of the bus rides home.

The team watches patiently as the game drags on. The Lady Rams had a full team consisting of 24 players, leaving 13 subs ready to go in at any time. Alison Ulino is doing some fancy footwork and getting the ball from the Huskies. Alison played left fullback and was an essential player in the Rams' defense.



Kristen Oxford was another essential player for the team. Using her agression and sneaky skills (pulling her opponent's jersey), she wins the ball. Although she plays a defensive position, Kristen had three goals this year for the Rams.

"This was a good year for the varsity volleyball team," Erin Frantz, senior, said. "Hopefully we will do well in the playoffs, but I will be happy no matter what, since we beat Northern." Erin was a very important part of the team.

There were only two seniors on the team, which means the next season will be very successful.

The varsity team had a record of 9-5, giving this year's team the record for most wins.

harder competition
shorter playing time

Staff Writer: Megan Burner

When making a final decision about which college to attend, many thing come to a senior's mind. Do I like the atmosphere? Do they offer the major I want? And the big question on most minds: How good are the sports teams?

Nine seniors interested in playing college sports were interviewed. Many have been playing a certain sport since they came out of the womb, and others -- not quite so long. Some are even looking for a sports scholarship to pay their way through college.

Most can not imagine their live without involvement in a particu lar sport.

Whatever the case may be, the all want to continue playing sport in college. The competition is harde and the playing time potentiall shorter than in high school. How ever, these nine students are read to take that challenge. There ar many students in the school tha have this same outlook and thes nine represent all of them. Goo luck and play hard!

Southern High School is sending its senior athletes out to compete at the college level. Among our hopefuls are:
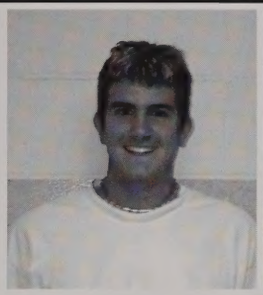
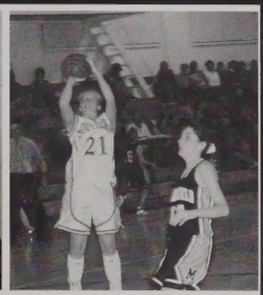
Standing: Ricky Reams, Ashley Liller, Erin Frantz, DR Parsons, and Bryan Hinebaugh.

Jennifer Bosley would love to play softball in a division one college. She would like to attend a college south of Maryland and would even consider going as far away as Hawaii! When asked why she is worthy to play softball in college, she relied, "STATE CHAMPS!" Bosley has been a key element for the Southern softball team. "I love softball," Bosley said. "Also, if I stay active, I won't gain those freshman fifteen."

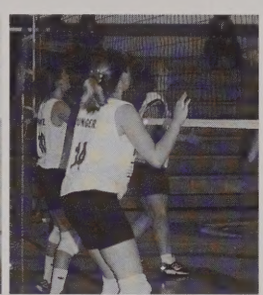


"I eat, sleep, and breathe soccer," DR Parsons, senior, said. "Also I have a good chance of getting scholarships. DR wants to play soccer in a small division one or two school. His two choices are Western Maryland College and WVU. Parsons has been on the all area team and was second in the area for scoring. These are just some of the qualities that will help DR compete at a college level.

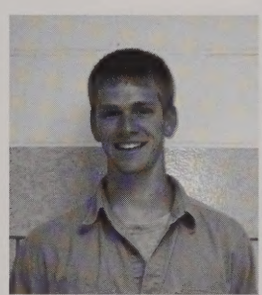


The Lillers are known for their basketball skills and Ashley has carried on that tradition. In her junior year, she hit her 1000 point mark and continued to work harder her senior year. Liller would like to play basketball in a division one or two college and would like to attend WVU or Fairmont State. Liller has dedicated most of her life to the sport of basketball and doesn't know what she would do without it.

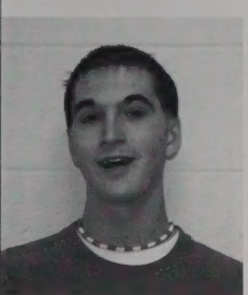
Everyone who has met Brad Palmer knows that he wants to play football in college. He would like to play in a division one or two school. His top choices of schools are Ohio University or IUP. Brad led the football team in tackles his junior year and made all area defensive end and all conference defensive end. Not many people would want to get in his way. When asked why he continues to play football, he replied, "I love the game."

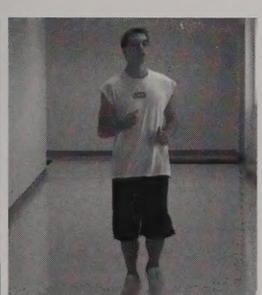


Volleyball is Erin Frantz's choice to play in college. She hasn't decided which college she will attend, but she would like for it to be close to home. Frantz and her teammates had one of the best records in Southern's history. She is up for the challenge of competing in college sports. Erin states that volleyball is fun and keeps her out of trouble. "I'm not ready to quit yet," Erin says.



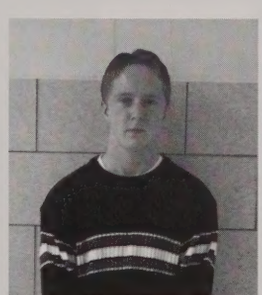
Ricky Reams wants to play baseball in a division one or two college. He plans to attend West Virginia Wesleyan. Ricky has played shortstop his entire life and plans to continue this tradition. Enjoying the game is important to Ricky but scholarship opportunities are always on his mind. Ricky has been a starter all his life and is confident that he can compete in college sports.





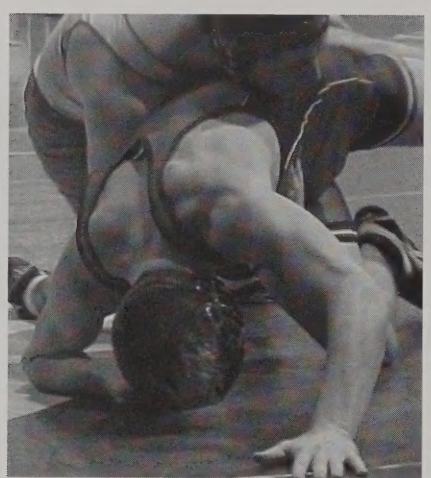
Track is the sport that Bryan Hinebaugh would like to play in college. He would like to attend Penn State but, like many seniors, he is still undecided. Hinebaugh is known for his jumping and sprinting. "It's fun and there are many new challenges that are involved when playing a sport," Hinebaugh says. "For example, you get to travel to different places."

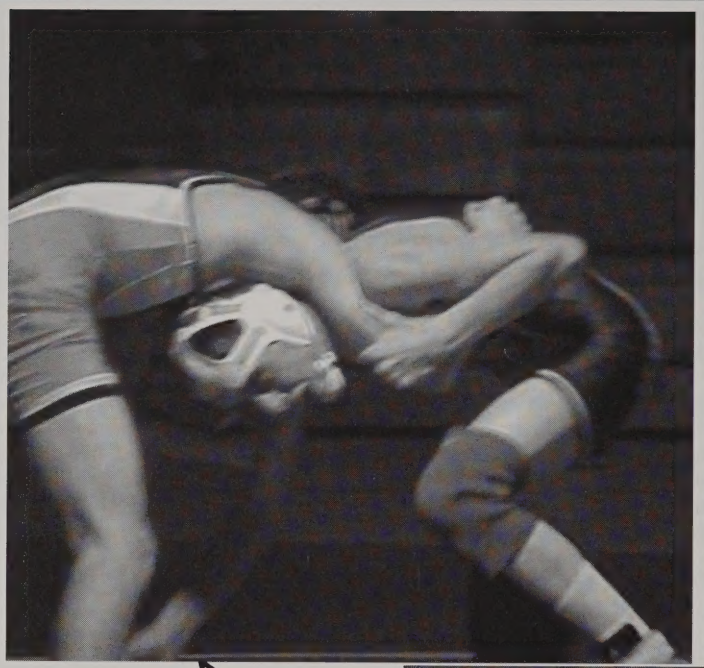
Virginia Tech is where Becky Martin plans to continue her soccer career. Martin has been one of the team's captains every year and received many awards throughout her career at Southern. For example, she was selected for the first or second team all-area every year and the first team WMIL every year. "I have been playing soccer since I was eight," Martin said. "It has become a part of my life that I depend on. It always seems to calm me down."

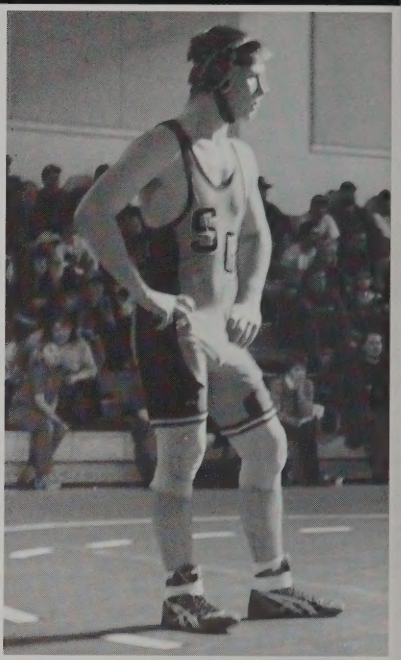


Kody Morfoot's desire is to play tennis in college. He would like to attend PTI, but his options are still open. He had the best record on the team his junior year, which was 7-2 and finished second at bi-county doubles. He also anxiously awaits the scholarship money that some colleges offer.

"We usually pray,"says Riff Browning, senior. "It's a tradition that has been followed for years whether we keep winning or not." The coaches pray with the team before every match begins.







Justin Gregory, the team captain, fights steadfastly to defeat his opponent. Geoffrey Tressler waits patiently for his opponent from Northern to take the mat. Joe Ashby, Nick Rush, Joe Williams, and Mike Steyer keep their fingers crossed as they cheer for their teammate. "Even though you can't really hear anything while you're in a match," says Mike, "it helps to know that the whole team is behind you."

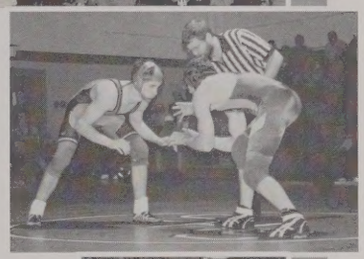
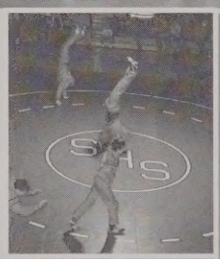
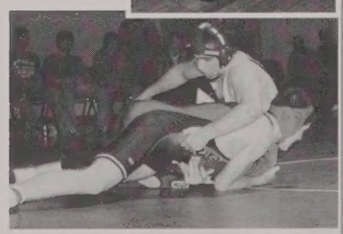
In Southern High School's fifty years, many students have shown courage, determination, and a desire to succeed. Few, however, have displayed these qualities with as much vigor as the Southern High wrestlers of the 2001-2002 season. Even in the face of adversity, these boys continued to put forth their best effort. "We all worked really hard," said Mike Steyer, junior. "So even when we didn't win, we knew we did our best." Their best took two members of the team all the way to states.

Chris "Mo" Hayhurst and Joe Ashby put their desire to succeed to its best possible use. Like the wrestlers from years past who achieved their goal of states, Chris and Joe used their talents to go all the way.

Under the leadership of captain Justin Gregory, senior, the team members renewed their courage and determination with each and every match. "It has been a great honor to be the team captain," said Justin. "In the past four years, I've gotten a lot of experience in both teamwork and leadership."







Engaged in an exhausting stuggle, Nick Rush attempts to pin his opponent. "As a senior," Nick said, "I felt a lot more pressure to do my best in all my matches."

Throughout the beginning of the season, the girls struggled to play as a team, but once they overcame that hurdle, nothing could stop them. "The team was terrible at first," admitted Krista Hanline, "but we put aside our differences and concentrated on the game." By the end of the season, the team had made its way to a 10-10 record.

Playing for revenge on the Lady Tornadoes, Mandy King started off the game with her famous two point jump shot. "Mandy was awesome! When we needed her, she was there," Ashley Stuck said.

"Basketball is a lot of hard work but it was worth all we went through because of the good times we had!" Anna Lucas reported.

Forward Alasha Rush says,"This is my first year and Coach Jeremy Skiles helped me to learn the rules of the game. Basketball also takes up lots of my time. It takes a very responsible person to be able to play sports and keep up in school."

After a good pick from Julia Bosley, Danielle Hickman shoots an open jumper against Fort Hill. Number eleven Roxann Hoalcraft shoots for two to tie up the game. Roxann was one the JV's best defensive players this year. The players on the floor race down to the other basket to carry out their fast break. Jasmine Scheffel fakes right in order to get around her defender to take the ball to the basket.

Lori Fox shoots a two pointer against The Lady Tornadoes while trying to break through the double play.

Danielle Hickman tries to make her foul shot while her teammates rest.

"Even though I was only able to play in five games," Melissa Flanagan, junior, stated, "I really enjoyed being part of the team this year. It was exciting that we went undefeated during the regular season and it was too bad we couldn't have went all the way." Losing a few starters from last year, the team picked up a couple of girls who helped the team in many ways.

The five starters -- Ashley Liller, Jennifer Bosley, Justine Pagenhardt, Becca Flanagan, and Robbin Gregg -- formed the backbone of the team and led them to a successful season.

The newcomers Nina Stoner, Sabrina Scheffel, Mandi Stahl, and Melissa Flanagan had different ways of showing their talent and helping the team all season long. Being four points shy of competing at UMBC for the final four, the team overall had an excellent season.

The Southern JV boys' basketball team had a good season, finishing with a 14-6 record. Despite losing last year's starting players to the varsity team, the JV team was still able to triumph over tough competition. This year's team was very young and included five freshmen. Through hard work and dedication, they surprised many with their outstanding record.

Anthony Ablonczy, the team's leading scorer, said, "The good thing about basketball is the competition. It's hard to find good competition for Southern, but when you do, there's nothing like it." Crey Tressler and Cory Bosley were the JV team's second and third leading scorers, respectively.

Basketball season was brought to an end with a record of 21-4 at the West Region Championship game against South Hagerstown.

"We had a very good season," Coach Tom Bosley said. "Winning the Area Championship and the WMI League Championship are goals we set before the season, so we are pleased to accomplish these goals."

After a rough start, losing three tournament games, the Rams then went on an eighteen game winning streak.

"I enjoyed leading the team this year," Chad Panther, senior, said. "I was happy to be a part of a team with such a talented group of athletes." Chad led the team in steals and assists with 64 and 119 respectively.

The Rams had a powerful offense this year. The team outscored their opponents on average 56.7 to 45.5.

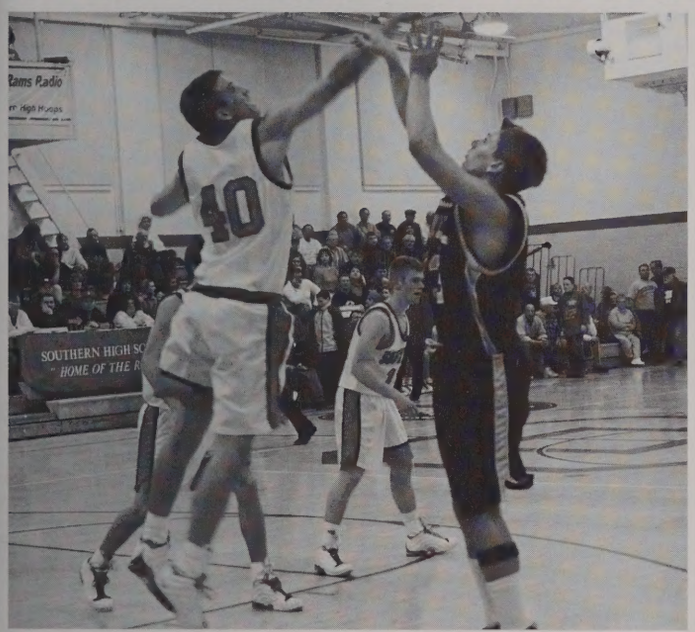
"I didn't get to play a whole lot," Chad Cerrito, junior, said, "but getting to be a member of such a good team was a thrill." Although Chad's playing time was limited, he contributed to the team by "pumping them up" with his pre-game antics.

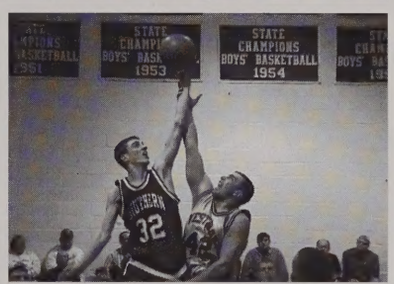
The season ended with a heartbreaking loss to South Hagerstown. Despite this one point defeat, the Rams concluded the year with an awesome record and many memories.

"The fourth consecutive twenty plus win season speaks of consistency in our program and this year's seniors are the winningest two year group in our history with forty-three wins," said Coach Bosley.

"Basketball has been great the past four years," JB Murphy, senior, said. "It has taught me a lot. We always won and never lost until the last one. It's so depressing because it ends a great season which we always had." Northern's 6'6" opponent is no match for our own JB Murphy. JB was the Rams best outside shooter this year.

Ricky Reams, senior, shows the Northern Huskies his game face. "I was one of the smallest guys on the team," Ricky said. "But that made me jump higher, play harder, and defeat my opponent."





Senior DR Parsons shoots for two and gets fouled. He went to the free throw line and made both shots. "I had a great time this season," DR said. "I had a chance to hang out with some friends and win some games. It was a good time." Senior Chad Panther drives around his defender to score. Chad averaged 12.9 points per game and led the team in steals and assists. Bryson Meyers, senior, blocks a shot from the Beall point guard. Bryson's tremendous height allowed him to constantly shut down the opposing team's offensive drive. Matt Stevens, junior, rises above his opponent during the tip-off. Matt was one of the two starting juniors for the team.

For the past couple of years, the junior varsity cheerleading squad has had only one tryout per year. The same squad cheered during football season and basketball season. This year was an exception. All of the freshman cheerleaders but one quit at the end of football season. The junior varsity squad could not cheer all of basketball season with only five girls, which meant there had to be a tryout before basketball season started. Once the new squad was picked, there was a lot of work to be done.

The new girls had to learn fifty chants and floor cheers. They had to practice after school every day for a month to prepare for cheering at basketball games. Not only do they have to cheer at junior varsity boys' basketball games, but also at girls' varsity basketball games and wrestling matches. During the season the girls practiced once or twice a week and cheered at two or more games a week. The junior varsity cheerleaders worked hard and boosted the spirit of the teams and the fans.

Once again, Southern High School's varsity cheerleading squad had an outstanding year. With three seniors leading the squad, the cheerleaders brought spirit to all of the fall and winter athletic events. With six new additions to the squad and the purchase of new uniforms, the girls worked hard to perfectly synchronize their motions and cheer to the best of their ability.

"Cheerleading was a fun experience like it has been since my freshman year," Brittney Friend, junior, said. "We all have a close friendship and get along great. Between th road trips, games, and practice togethe cheerleading was a lot of fun."

The varsity squad practices their stunting skills so Erica Irwin and Andrea Beachy do not fall during the game.

The seniors on the squad: Andrea Coughlin, Shayla Collins, and Lindsey Perry smile for the camera at Northern High School. "So many people wanted pictures of us, my face hurt from smiling," Lindsey Perry, senior, said. Goofing off during a game, the squad takes time out to pose for a picture. "Cheerleading has been an interesting experience for me," Ashley Dick, sophomore, said. "I was basically out all football season and it felt so good to finally cheer. I will really miss the seniors because they are great. This season was fun and challenging, and overall it was great."

For athletes, injury is expected but never welcomed. One would think an injury would be a setback for an athlete, but for junior Bart Shaffer, that is not the case. "I can play better with a broken hand! It actually improved my game," he said. The same results may not apply to everyone else.

Senior Nick Gangler does not think negatively about an injury when he gets one. He simply tries to do the best that he can to care for it. "If I hurt my hands, I try to work out extra hard on my legs so I don't get too far behind," he said.

Injuries can have different effects on different people, but we all agree that if there is no pain endured, then nothing has been gained. Fortunately, none of the injuries affected the athletic teams too much because all of the teams have performed well. Go Rams!

Another memorable season is in the books for the Lady Rams softball team. They had an outstanding season with twenty-one wins and another state championship banner. The Lady Rams were led by all the seniors. Jennifer Bosley was the ace pitcher for the Rams with a 19-0 record, allowing only three earned runs in 123 innings pitched. Jennifer said, "The season was very rewarding -- to know that all of our hard work paid off."

The Rams lost only one game on the way to their second straight state championship. Senior Megan Burner said, "Winning states again felt much better because we are seniors and are leaving high school as champs."

Megan had a great year playing centerfield where she played error-free defense. The Lady Rams were all smiles as they had their best year ever.

The team takes a rest between innings just before they get ready to bat. Gina Reeves, senior, said, "It was a lot of fun playing with all my friends. It was even more special to win the state championship."

jv baseball

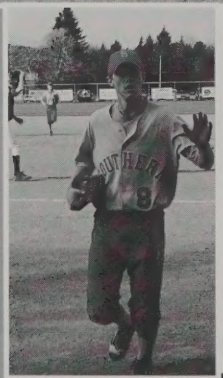
Staff Writer: Mindy Welling



The JV baseball season was short and sweet for the freshmen and sophomores on the team. The JV team was undefeated with a record of 15-0, with five games cancelled due to inclimate weather.

"This year was a great experience going undefeated," Travis Friend, sophomore, said. "All of our hard work paid off."

Pitchers Billy Reams, Corey Burrell, and Scott Wildesen each pitched four winning games and losing none. Billy struck out 39 batters with only six walks, and Scott had 33 strikeouts with only 11 walks.

Although the JV season was short, some of the sophomores were invited to move up to the varsity team for playoffs. JV pitcher Billy Reams pitched one inning at the Region Championship game.

Southern's offense was also very strong. Cory Bosley and Billy Reams led the team with the highest batting averages of .419 and .451 respectively.

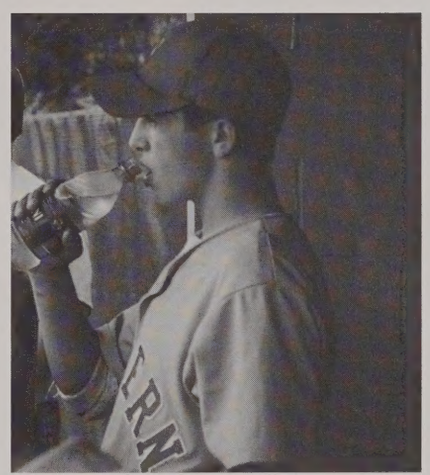
Curt Taylor is stunned as the other team makes a home run.

Brad Reese comes in from a tiring game. Travis Friend waits intensely, trying to show his team spirit. Jason Weeks prepares to bat. "Our JV baseball season was great," said Scott Wildesen. "Not only was it fun, but we earned another undefeated season."



After a hard game, Scott Wildesen takes a drink of refreshing cold water.

Congratulations to the JV team on an undefeated season!

lucky signs
varsity baseball

Staff Writer: Andrea Coughlin

It has been a ritual for the varsity baseball team to hit on the "Ram" sign at the beginning of every home baseball game. Obviously the ritual worked because this year has been the most successful in the school's history. The team finished with a final record of 21-1. Sadly, the twenty-one game winning streak, the best in history, was stopped in the regional tournament by Boonsboro when Southern lost 10-7.

The seniors dominated all of the team's top statistics. Ricky Reams and Chad Panther led the team in hitting. Bryson Meyers led the team with nine wins as a pitcher.

All together, the seniors have a combined two year record of 43 wins and three defeats.

"I felt this team was the best one at Southern High School," Coach Jim Bosley said. "They won the W.M.I.L. league for the third straight year and the Times-News Area Championship for the eighth year out of sixteen."

Although the season was stopped premature of a state championship, the varsity team had yet another outstanding season full of wins and memories.

Just before the game, the Varsity Baseball team continues their ritual of beating the "Ram" sign in hopes of becoming victors of yet another game. "Baseball is so much fun and the seniors are really cool. It made the season great," AJ Bender, junior, said.

girls' track

Staff Writer: Chelsea Remley

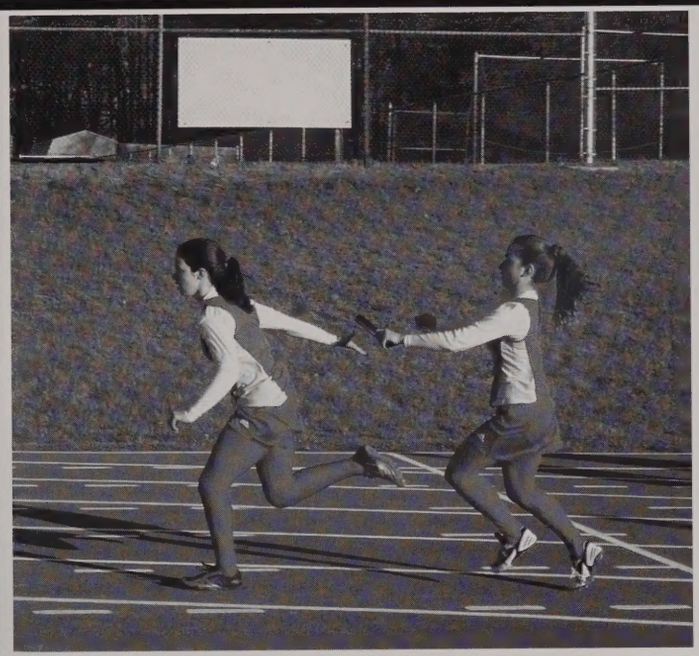
The girls' track team acquired many new freshmen runners, throwers, and jumpers, but lost several senior runners. New schools entered into Southern's region this year, causing fiercer competition at their regional meet. Nevertheless, many athletes still made it to the state meet.

In addition to all of these changes, a new coach was also added to the team. Coach Fred Gregg helped the team this year by coaching the sprinters. As a result, the sprinters showed marked improvement.

The girls' track team this year only had three seniors captains: Jenny Hickman, Miriam Sincell, and Erin Frantz. The captains were a big help to the coaches by keeping the team in line and making sure that everyone ran her two warm up laps.

The coaches expect next year will be just as enjoyable.The girls' track coaches are Steve Cosner and Angie Teagarden. Certainly the girls' track team will continue to grow and improve throughout the years to come.

Southern's Robbin Gregg is running in the regional track meet at Williamsport High School. Robbin was Southern's top runner this year and a great asset to the team. Robbin won many races and helped the four by two and four by one relay teams.



Chelsea Remley is handing off to Jessica Sharon in the 1600 meter relay at a home meet against Northern and Preston. The team finished first in this race and in the overall meet.

Sophomore Eileen Mouyard hands off the baton to Robbin Gregg, sophomore, in the 400 meter relay. Brittney Friend is getting ready to run the 200 meter dash. She is in the set position and ready to take off. The sprinters experienced vast improvement with the help of Fred Gregg as their coach.

Justine Pagenhardt is high jumping during a home meet. Justine was one of the team's top jumpers.

The boys' track team had a very exciting season with many new accomplishments and changes. This year Coach Gregg was added to the coaching staff for the boys' track team. He specifically helped with the sprinters to improve their speed and abilities. Even though the track team had a cold and rainy season, they still tried their best at each meet.

This year the boys' four by two relay made it to states as well as Matt Stephens. Matt placed second at the regional meet in high jump. Each member of the boys' track team was dedicated and strived hard to reach his goals. The track team had a decent season and is looking forward to a new start next year with many new goals in mind.

Steve Knepp is a distance runner on the boys' track team. This has been Steve's second year on the team and he plans to run track his senior year as well.

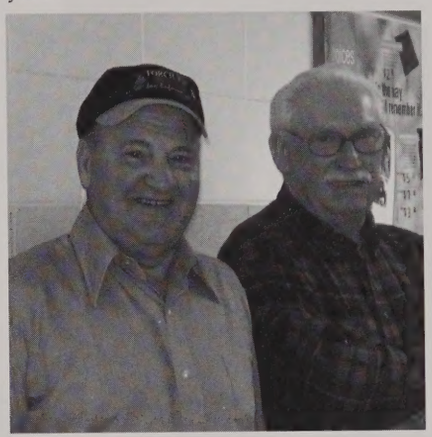
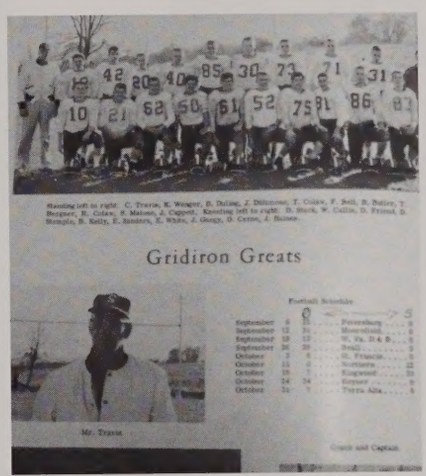
Mr. Woods congratulates one of Southern's past basketball most valuable players.

At a Southern basketball game, many of Southern's past basketball players were welcomed back to help celebrate the anniversary of Southern High. Pictured to the left are the most valuable players of the past fifty years.



Cheerleaders

A few members of a past basketball teamwait to be recognized in front of the many fans at one of Southern's basketball games. The crowd learned how this team pulled together to break many records and win many games. Their presence was welcomed and applauded. To the left is the first group of cheerleaders. Male cheerleaders were an integral part of the squad.



This is one of Southern's first football teams. This team succeeded in many ways throughout their season. They had many accomplishments as well as disappointments, being a new addition to the school.

During the pep assembly, Southern's first football team received a standing ovation from the student body. The students were very excited to be able to meet and hear about the very first football team. During this time, students learned about the players and records the team, players, and records that they had made. The players also walked the halls of the school and observed the changes as well as those things that had remained the same.

David Wolf is a fourth year art student. He was one of the students selected to draw and paint the murals. Davy stated that "the sixties mural was very enjoyable for me because I got to get creative and work on a project that would affect generations to come."

Many art students helped to make the new murals for the school cafeteria. Erika Steyer was one of the students who was chosen to participate in this activity.

Throughout the week different student bands were chosen to demonstrate their talents. Adam Miller, Andrew Hill,and Nathan and Clinton Kitzmiller were one of the bands that was chosen to play. Their band's name is " Screaming into a Sheet," and they played music from the nineties. Stephen Knepp also participated in singing one song with the group.This particular group recieved many compliments as well as the other groups.

Benjamin Peracchio and Johnathon Armstrong were two of the many students who showed thier school spirit on seventies day. They gladly wore their leisure suits to show what the wardrobe of the seventies looked like. Although these studs claimed not to have had many girlfriends, they were fighting off the women left and right.

flashback anniversary activities

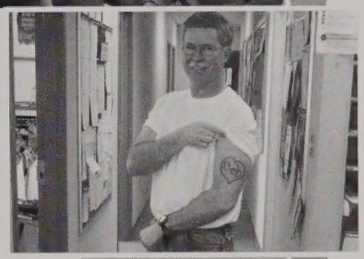
Staff Writer: Marci Biggs

This year Southern High School celebrated its fiftieth anniversary. During the week of April eighth through the twelfth many students participated in dress-up days for each decade from the fifties through the nineties.

Students watched a power point presentations created by the fiftieth anniversary committee, headed by Mrs. Joan Lambert. Each day we learned something new about the school and the changes it underwent in that decade.

This year many art students worked under the direction of Mrs. Sonia Pratt to create two new murals for the schools cafeteria. The Beatles, Princess Diana, and Bill Gates are just a few of the recognizable faces that stand as icons of the decades.

Southern High School has had a great past fifty years with many improvements and changes. We know that many successful and challenging years await us.



One of the murals that the art class worked on was the sixties mural. The art students worked for a long time under the direction of Mrs. Sonia Pratt to complete this mural. It includesrepresentations of many of the events of that decade. After the two murals are completed they will hang in the cafeteria to remind students of the world events that have shapes the last fifty years.
